MANY CONFLICTING REPORTS CLOUD MRS. MCPHERSON'S CASE

Deny She's Seriously Ill;
Mother Says She Was
Smacked

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 20.—Out of the welter of reports concerning Amee Semple McPherson, noted evangelist, and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, the public today muddled over a series of rumors which ran the gamut from the somewhat bizarre charge of "snake-throwing" to broken noses and "face-lifting."

With both Mrs. McPherson and her mother under the care of physicians, the situation today was a mass of contradictions. From Angelus Temple sources came word that Mrs. McPherson was "near death" in her closely-guarded Malibu Beach cottage. Her physician, Dr. Edward M. Williams, stated, however, that her condition was not serious and that she would probably be up in a day or two.

Reports that Mrs. McPherson was blind were denied by Dr. Williams.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Kennedy is at a Brentwood sanitarium, where she is being treated for a broken nose. She accused her daughter of smiting her on that organ. Mrs. Kennedy said she and her daughter quarreled over reports concerning the evangelist and her secretary, Miss Mae Waldron. "She called me to her house," said Mrs. Kennedy. "She acted as if she were wild when I got there. She accused me of talking about Miss Waldron and herself. I denied this, but I did tell her I said something about some of her associates."

DESPONDENCY OVER MONEY MATTERS IS CAUSE FOR SUICIDE

Charles B. Mason Ends
Life Tuesday With
Pistol

Worry over money matters was ascribed as the reason for the suicide of Charles Benjamin Mason, 54, who died from a self-inflicted bullet wound in his head Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at his home three miles east of Xenia.

Mason shot himself at 1:30 o'clock. According to his wife's version of the affair, as told to Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown, county coroner, who investigated, Mason left the house early Tuesday morning and took his .38 caliber revolver with him, saying he was going to shoot rats.

Returning home about noon, he sat down to his meal and after eating, discussed finances with his wife. Finally, he arose, and with the remark he intended to end it all, walked into an adjoining room and fired a bullet from the revolver into his head behind the right ear.

Mr. Mason moved to Greene County from London, O., about three months ago. He was part owner of a meat store in London and because business was poor he was reported to have been on the verge of closing the store.

A son, John Mason, operates the Union Meat Co., Xenia. A stepdaughter, who lived with Mr. and Mrs. Mason, and a stepson, residing in London, also survive.

Private funeral services will be held at the funeral parlors of J. H. Whitmer, local undertaker, at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon, with burial in Woodland Cemetery.

MERGER OPPONENTS RESUME ATTACK IN STEEL LITIGATION

Director Admits He Had
Knowledge Of Bonus
System

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 20.—After a brief intermission yesterday, at which another crack was taken at the Bethlehem Steel Corporation bonus system, attorneys opposing the merger of the concern with Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. today resumed their attack in Common Pleas Court here against the terms of the consolidation.

Recalling Henry G. Dalton, director in both Sheet and Tube and Bethlehem, to the witness stand yesterday, anti-merger attorneys elicited an admission from the financier that he had a vague knowledge of the Bethlehem bonus system under which Eugene G. Grace has received more than $1,000,000 a year as president.

Dalton said, however, that he did not mention the bonus system to Sheet and Tube directors prior to their approval of the merger contract, but that he would have "had it come to my mind."

The witness testified that he had known on March 12 what he knows today of the bonus system. He would have told the Sheet and Tube directors about it "because it had become an important topic and should be discussed."

During this testimony, Judge David G. Jenkins who is hearing the suit against the merger, interposed the remark that "the question of the amounts paid under the bonus system and their propriety has absolutely nothing to do with the question this court has to determine."

"The question here," Judge Jenkins said, "is simply whether its operation and its effect on the combined properties should or should not have been given as information to the Youngstown directors before they passed on the merger, and in the second place to the stockholders before they voted on its ratification."

GEORGETOWN, O., Aug. 20.—The murder trial of John Zeller, 24, of Cincinnati, who is charged with slaying Robert Clemens, 68-year-old farmer of Kimballs Ford, opened in the Brown County common pleas court here today.

Zeller is charged with first-degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting last May 13 of the aged farmer.

Charles Cramer, 31, of Hamilton, was found guilty of a similar charge two months ago and is now in "death row" at Ohio State penitentiary. He has been sentenced to die in the electric chair October 11.

Two others, who are said to have been implicated in the murder are awaiting trial. They are Fred Davis, 26, and Charles Johnson, 26, both of Cincinnati.

Clemens was shot four times the night of last May 13 after he had answered a call to help the men push an automobile out of a creek near his home. The four men were arrested the following day at Cincinnati.

The farmer identified Cramer and Davis as two of his assailants before he died. His wounds proved fatal two days later. Cramer and Davis confessed, police say, and implicated Zeller and Johnson.

PATROLMAN WINS BET; FINDS PAIR SANS PANTS

Patrolman George Robinson was strolling east along the sidewalk on E. Main St. at 11:30 o'clock Tuesday night when a strange sight met his eyes.

In the doorway of the Famous Cheap Store stood two men, sans their trousers. They were munching on popcorn. Their trousers lay on the floor.

The officer was immediately interested and sought to get at the bottom of the case.

The men told him that having no money they had wagered their pants that each could eat his sack of popcorn before the other could. As it turned out Patrolman Robinson won the bet for he took both contestants to police headquarters, where they were booked on intoxication charges. First, however, he permitted them to don their trousers.

Arraigned before Municipal Judge E. D. Smith Wednesday morning, Leroy Knish, 44, E. Main St., and Earl Cummings, 44, Washington C. H., pleaded not guilty, were found guilty and each was fined $25 and costs. They were sent to jail in lieu of payment.

YOUTH ADMITS MANY ROBBERIES, AUTO THEFTS NEAR XENIA

Implicates Three Others;
Clears Up Robberies Here

Numerous auto thefts and robberies which have occurred in Xenia, Dayton and nearby cities in recent weeks are believed to have been cleared up by the alleged confession of William H. Snyder, 22, of 1621 N. Yellow Springs St., Springfield, under arrest in that city.

Further questioning by authorities has elicited details of an amazing career of crime on the part of Snyder and three other Springfield youths whom Snyder implicated, according to Police Chief O. H. Cornwell, who was in Springfield Tuesday night.

Snyder implicated Alfred W. Neumann, Arnott Loy and John Duffy, it is said, as having participated with him in numerous holdups and robberies.

Only one of these boys, however, is in the custody of police as Neumann died from injuries suffered in an auto accident near Kenton, O., August 14 and Loy is a patient in a Kenton hospital recuperating from injuries sustained in the same crash. The accident occurred when a car driven by Snyder skidded from the road and smashed into a tree.

Snyder confessed, Chief Cornwell said, to having stolen a Buick sedan, bearing a dealer's license and belonging to M. H. Daily, Wilmington, from Wilson's swimming pool here June 30. He admitted the theft of a Studebaker car owned by Harry Rich, Xenia, Aug. 1. The car was later abandoned near the town where he was arrested. Snyder and his companions had robbed a filling station there.

The youth charged that Loy and Neumann were responsible for the robbery at the Roy V. Hull filling station on Dayton Ave., here about a week ago in which the attendant was forced to hand over about $35 from the cash register. They drove away in a Ford coupe later identified as having been stolen earlier the same evening at Fairfield.

According to Snyder's confession, he and his companions were also responsible for the theft of another auto in Xenia either July 11 or July 12. Police have not ascertained definitely whether the stolen Anderson Rent-A-Car agency or was the one owned by Purdon and McFarland, local auto agency.

The three Springfield youths were linked with the series of robberies through the discovery of a bullet-ridden car, owned by Loy, found abandoned near London, O., two days after a filling station hold-up at Washington C. H. In the car were found papers bearing the names of Loy and Snyder.

Following this robbery, the youths had a hard time evading the law. They drove to Jamestown, where village authorities had been forewarned, and found the main street barricaded. Turning around the fugitives led a posse of half a hundred citizens a merry chase in and out of country roads, finally making their escape after an exchange of shots with two village officers at South Charleston.

John Duffy, 21, the other youth in custody, has been identified along with Snyder as having participated in the hold-up of a filling station proprietor at West Jefferson, who was robbed of $17.40 several weeks ago.

Snyder and Duffy were turned over to Madison County authorities for prosecution and will be arraigned in London on highway robbery charges as most of the alleged offenses occurred in that county. A warrant will be sent to Kenton, O., for the arrest of Loy immediately, it was said.

LINER PASSENGERS PRAISE DARING OF STEAMER OFFICERS

Desperate Efforts Kept
Stricken Ship
Afloat

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa, Aug. 20.—Passengers of the sunken steamer Tahiti, who were brought here aboard the rescue ship, Ventura, today told of the expert seamanship on the part of both captains which permitted the transfer of passengers and crew in a rough sea without a single casualty.

The rescue ship under the command of Captain W. R. Meyer steamed close to the Tahiti while the 252 persons were taken aboard in small boats. The passengers praised the coolness of Captain T. A. Totten of the Tahiti in keeping the foundering ship afloat until rescue arrived.

Working below decks and in darkness the engineers and members of the steward's department rigged up emergency pumps and, with hand pumps and buckets, poured water from holds three and four in a desperate effort to keep the liner afloat.

When Captain Totten and the last of the crew left the Tahiti the ship was foundering rapidly. The last of the crew left at 3:40 p. m. Sunday and an hour later the stern dipped beneath the surface. The Tahiti's bow was lifted aloft in the plunge downward, passengers said.

The survivors gave generous praise to the expert seamanship of Captain Meyer, who directed his ship through a treacherous course in record time. Without hesitating, the Ventura's captain ordered lifeboats launched and the dangerous work of transferring the Tahiti's passengers to the Ventura began.

The first intimation of trouble came, according to Chief Engineer Theodor Thomsen, a violent vibration was noticed in the stern of the Tahiti.

"The propeller shaft fell out," he said, "and the water rushed through the hole and into the engine rooms through a smashed in door."

Those recounted how the second assistant engineer dived under the rushing waters to make fast another door leading to the engine rooms and partly checking the progress of the water.

Sir Hugh Allen, president of the British Academy of Music, said that he was awakened by the vibration. "It was about daylight," he said. "The racket awakened me and I got up and went on deck. Other passengers soon joined me. Nobody appeared to be alarmed. Soon afterward the captain ordered us to don life belts."

"The officers and crew of the Tahiti really worked in a marvelous way," he said. "The enormous admiration and the enormous calm as they ineffectually informed us of the approach of the rescue ships. We cannot give them too much praise."

"The last sight of the Tahiti, just before it went down, left a vivid impression on me. With her stern up she was like a struggling animal. An additional swell gradually crept toward her bow. Finally she seemed to raise straight up out of the water and then slid down and disappeared."

George D. Reed, a Pasadena, Cal., banker, said he felt there was something amiss when he first felt the violent vibration.

"Then the ship stopped," he said. "There was no panic of any kind. The crew was well disciplined. The passengers continued to get servings of hot food from the galleys."

The Penryn arrived alongside of the Tahiti during the night, according to Reed.

The Penryn kept circling around us during the night," he said, "and we were twice ordered to take to the life boats. We did not go, for the smoke of the Ventura was sighted about this time."

Chief Radio Operator Davison revealed that his equipment was put out of commission about an hour and a half after the accident, when the dynamos were flooded.

"We were able to rig up a spark coil emergency set for a short time," he said, "and then we obtained more power from a life boat. The engineers finally got a dry spare armature into the dynamo after eight hours of grueling work. Then we frequently used the regular set, but conserved steam as much as possible for the pumps by switching back to the life boat hook-up."

Upon their arrival here the survivors were taken into the homes of the officers stationed here, while others were quartered in the enlisted men's barracks. All were comfortably housed and dined ashore.

The crew of the Tahiti and the passengers whose destination were some points in the islands will remain here until they can be picked up by another ship. The rest of the passengers will continue on the Ventura, which was scheduled to clear a few hours after her arrival.

Plans for the annual reunion of Company F, 330th Infantry, Eighty-third Division, a World War unit recruited largely from Greene and neighboring counties, are being pushed here by J. Wilbur Corry, Cleveland attorney, who is visiting relatives in Yellow Springs.

The reunion will be held September 6 and 7 at the John Bryan State Park, near Yellow Springs, on the site of Camp Miami, Boy Scout camp, where the Scout kitchen and other camp equipment will be available for the veterans. A number of Cleveland members, including Dr. W. P. Edmunds, former company commander, who is now physician for the Standard Oil Co., there, will be in attendance.

Swimming, softball, the "old army games" and other entertainment features are being planned.

Virginia Senator Calls Tariff Act Vicious

REGIMENT TO HOLD REUNION; SERVED ON ITALIAN FRONT

The 332nd Infantry, a regiment from Ohio and western Pennsylvania, the only American regiment on the Italian-Austrian front during the World War, is to hold a reunion at Springfield, Ohio, on August 30 and 31.

The regiment was trained at Camp Sherman and Camp Perry in Ohio, went overseas to England and France with the Eighty-Third Division, and was then selected by General Pershing to represent the United States on the Italian front. It saw service along the Piave River on the Venetian Plain, the river forming "No Man's Land" between the Austrian and Italian forces and the respective allies. The regiment took part in the final drive of the Italian and allied armies, the victorious battle of Vittorio Veneto, which ended only with the Armistice on November 4, 1918, seven days earlier than the Armistice with Germany. On that offensive the 332nd advanced far into Austrian territory. After the Armistice the regiment was scattered with other allied troops in Austria, Montenegro, and at Fiume on the west shore of the Adriatic. The insignia of the 332nd Infantry were the picturesque winged Lion of St. Marks, the ancient emblem of Venice symbolic of the service of the Americans on the Venetian plain and in defense of that city. Colonel William Wallace of the regular army was its commander during its service overseas, and its Lieut. Colonel was General Emerson, who is now on the army general staff in charge of all national guard work.

The feature of the reunion will be dinner by companies Saturday evening, followed by a big regimental get-together and entertainment, at which will be exhibited motion pictures taken by the U. S. army signal corps depicting activities of the 332nd in Italy, and also other outstanding signal corps reels of the American army in action in France, Sunday noon there will be an old fashioned army style dinner, preceded by the business session of the reunion.

The reunion is being arranged by the officers of the 332nd Inf. Association, all of whom live in Springfield. Captain William Hunt Robbins who formerly commanded the headquarters company of the regiment is president, Horace S. Keifer vice president, and Frank L. Metz secretary.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

OUR LORD'S COMPASSION.—But when Jesus saw the multitude, he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd.—Matthew 9:36.

THE RICKSHAW

Although it is not correct to state that the picturesque vehicle of the far east, the jinrikisha or "rickshaw," has entirely disappeared from the Oriental scene, the automobile is crowding this man-power carriage from the streets of the larger cities of Japan and China. Trolley cars first threatened to usurp the jinrikisha's place as a means of transportation, but with the advent of motorcycles and automobiles, the rickshaw pullers themselves have bowed before the inevitable.

The Yokohama pullers' guild has spent 30,000 yen, or $15,000, for the purchase of taxicabs which the erstwhile rickshaw men are being taught to drive. Taxicabs in Tokyo have reduced their rates from a yen, or 50 cents, for which one could travel to any point within the city limits, to 50 sen, or 25 cents, forcing the rickshaw men to reduce their tariff accordingly.

Outside the large cities, of course, narrow roads still make the jinrikisha indispensable. But the tourist who spends a few hours on shore in the course of a world cruise will not find the rickshaw so common in the centers of population. Thus has the machine age vanquished another feature of quaint charm, though the conscience of the traveler who first climbs into one of these chariots drawn by another human being may have less reason to be troubled.

Credit to the invention of the jinrikisha is generally given to an American Baptist missionary named Goble, who, in 1869, is said to have fashioned the two-wheeled conveyance, somewhat resembling a sulky, from the large wheels of a baby carriage. Early in the same year one Takayama Kosuka obtained permission from the Japanese government to operate jinrikishas for hire, while another Japanese contributed the improvements of springs, wheel guards and the hood design, like a rascle top. Jinrikishas have since been introduced in all Asiatic countries and have even found their way into Africa.

TARIFF CHALLENGE

Any hesitation on the part of the chairman of the Democratic national committee to accept the challenge of the chairman of the Republican national committee to make the tariff the outstanding issue in the approaching congressional elections would have been surprising. J. M. Shouse, the expected thing: Grabbed up the gauntlet before it could be withdrawn.

The tariff is always a favorite issue with politicians. As a form of indirect taxation it is understood by relatively few people. Consequently campaign spellbinders can ring the changes on it, according to the political or economic complexion of their audiences, without much danger of being contradicted from the floor. All tariffs in this country have been and all tariffs in this country will continue until the end of time to be victims of political legerdemain before the eyes of consumers, who forget that they are also producers and in that capacity benefit from protection.

The particular tariff that will be discussed during the forthcoming campaign faces still another handicap. The Hawley-Smoot bill became law during one of the periodical slumps in business which persist in plaguing the United States, as well as the rest of the world. This will affect the party responsible for it in two ways. The free traders will claim that the tariff produced the depression; and the depression, which long antedated the enactment of the tariff and promises to continue for some months to come, will prevent the tariff from showing what it can accomplish under normal conditions.

As far as the elections this year are affected by it, we can't imagine the Democratic chairman seeking an issue better molded to his purpose of winning seats in congress. What will happen in 1932, after the Hawley-Smoot tariff has had a chance to show what it can do, very clearly is another question. After two years Chairman Shouse may not be so ready to accept the tariff as the decisive issue.

The WAY of the WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

WANT MONEY?

Do you want money? There is nearly a billion dollars ready to be loaned for building purposes—especially home building—in 46 cities of the United States. Anybody who says money is tight, according to H. U. Nelson, secretary of National Real Estate Boards, hasn't tried lately to borrow any for good building purposes.

Much unemployment has come from curtailment of home building. If you have a job and the ambition and want to build a home you can get the money.

CIRCUS CHURCHES

Many will agree with the Rev. Ira McCormack, Denver preacher, speaking in New York, who says circus tactics in church are no good.

"With the World war gradually growing dimmer in our memories, we find ourselves fact to face with an era of transition, in which science and big business dominate every phase of our existence," says Dr. McCormack. "But is the Church adequately adapting itself to the increased tempo of life? Does it answer the needs of modern society? I should unhesitatingly say that it does not. Instead, it appears bewildered, drifting along with no goal in sight."

"In hope of regaining its hold, the Church has resorted to sensational advertising, seeking to attract the public by skating on the thin ice of unconventionality. Such circus tactics as placing a block of ice in full view of a perspiring congregation or decorating the aisles with bare candles are hardly exaggerations of the extremes to which some ministers will go. Services are 'jazzed up,' and the meetings of young people's organizations resemble scenes in a cabaret."

MARATHONS

Most of us have watched marathon dancers. They shuffle back and forth, round and round, night after night, day after day, week after week. They are going nowhere. We look on, wonder, pity, and deplore. Stupid, we think. They are not doing anything more stupid than some of us who are not performing on dance floors. We are performing all right, but nobody is paying admission to see us. We are just going round and round, back and forth, getting nowhere. We work a little because we must have something to eat and a place to sleep. We are doing what we did last year and the year before. This does not apply to everybody. You don't have to be in this list. There are some who plan their lives, who know where they are going, who have a definite idea what they are going to do when they get there. There are a few, indeed, who have already arrived and are doing the thing they want to do.

Don't be a marathoner.

The Earth's Interior

What is supposed to be the chief ingredient of the earth's interior?

Up-to-date geophysicists believe that the earth has a core of nickel-iron of about one-half the globe's total diameter, undoubtedly in a molten liquid state, but a rigidity greater than steel due to tremendous pressure.

Passports

Was the present passport system a war creation or did it exist before the war?

Up to the outbreak of the war, the only two countries which required passports were Russia and Turkey.

Selling Shoe Stories

Where should I try to sell a short story?

Before attempting to sell a short story you should obtain a current market list through any of the magazines published for the guidance of authors. This list will enable you to determine those magazines which are in the market for the type of story you desire to sell.

President Irigoyen

Is President Irigoyen of the Argentine Republic serving his second term?

He is serving his second term, but the term began his first and second was served by President Alvear, inasmuch as the Argentine constitution does not permit a president to succeed himself.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK CITY, New York—

When you can call Mr. Ezra W. Hooley at his palatial suite of offices in the Bond Bldg. don't permit the window dressing to deceive you. All those stenographers and clerks and switchboard operators are not on his payroll. He pays rent for only one office in that suite, and the flock of employees goes with the lease—a community group at the beck and call of each tenant.

Mr. Hooley rents from a corporation whose business it is to contract for office space by the entire floor. The floor is divided into offices. The company furnishes them, supplies the employees and runs the joint as a unit.

Thus, Hooley, with his small but respectable one-man-business, is able to put up a million-dollar-front to the uninitiated—so necessary in the modern scramble.

FREE LUNCH

The financial editor of a New York paper thinks that if Wall Street's business continues at its present laggard pace brokers may soon be forced to offer special inducements to customers. He thinks a free lunch counter in the customers' room, or a keg of beer, might do the trick.

Something will have to be done. A trip around the brokerage offices gives one the blues. They're virtually empty. Three of the offices visited recently didn't contain a single customer. In others, a few men and women sat around reading the newspapers, with apparently no interest whatever in the market. They had come to the Street through force of habit.

On the theory that a little stimulant might go a long way toward ridding customers of their lethargy the suggestion has been advanced that brokers advertise refreshments served in the customers' rooms at a certain hour.

Stock exchange officials might frown on such procedure, but it sure would be funny, as someone suggests. If the next bull market were to get started on pigs' knuckles and sauerkraut instead of an upturn in business.

ANOTHER DROUGHT SUFFERER

NAVAL ASTRONOMER EXPLAINS WHY PLANETS ARE SPHERICAL

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Although, being ignorant as a horse of everything scientific, it never happened to occur to me until the other day—Isn't it odd that all the suns and planets are globular in form?—slightly bulging at their equators, to be sure, from the force of rotation on their imaginary axes, but approximately spherical.

Why aren't some of them square?—or irregularly polyhedral?—or miscellaneous jagged, ragged and lumpy?

Professor James Robertson of the United States naval observatory had to laugh (behind his hand, for he is the most considerate of old astronomers) at the naive bone-headedness of this inquiry.

Gravity is what makes the heavenly bodies globular, he explained.

The same attraction which caused Isaac Newton's apple to fall straightway to earth's solid surface, when the processes of ripening detached it from its parent branch on high, tends constantly to pull earth's own component layers down, around about it, toward its own center.

Suppose our world consisted of nothing but water.

Water's urge, as we know, is to find its own level—which is its response to the tug of gravity.

Our aqueous world's impulse, equally, would be to hug its own center as closely as possible; obviously it would have to take the shape of a ball to accomplish it.

The earth's raw material flows, remarked Professor Robertson.

Even granite flows—slowly, as we reckon time; nevertheless creeping imperceptibly to its level, at the best of gravity.

Ice is a solid, as truly as granite—and most people know that ice flows, the professor reminds us. At any rate, glaciers (or ice rivers) tend ceaselessly into the ocean—hence icebergs, as the ocean floats them away.

Maybe this makes the idea of the gradual flow of granite seem a trifle less incredible.

Of course the surface of an exclusively watery world would be likely to be ruffled into waves, by external or internal influences, so there is nothing surprising in the fact that our own earth's more substantial surface is not a dead level.

For that matter, the moon has mountain peaks that make the earth's look playfulness—25 or 30 miles high, some of them.

"Naturally," nods Professor Robertson. "The moon, being much smaller than the earth, has less gravitational attraction. The upheavals it must have experienced in its earlier formative period were correspondingly less restrained—and since they have been far less powerfully pulled down."

As to the earth, it is to be borne in mind, too, that our globe almost certainly did not start with its present solid crust, but presumably was gaseous and then liquid, materially assisting gravity in molding it into a tolerably perfect sphere.

Incidentally also it permitted its arrangement in the layers, or strata, which geologists talk so much about.

Up-to-date geologists, indeed, begin their study of the earth of today with a preliminary study of our entire solar system's origin (as nearly as they can guess at what it was) and refer to their science as "the domestic chapter of astronomy."

what not, immediately proceeded, not only to gravitate itself into a sphere, but to classify its ingredients at the same time.

To illustrate:

Instead of supposing it (as we previously strained our imaginations to do) to consist exclusively of water, let us suppose a world consisting partly of water; partly of oil—since we all know that oil and water do not mix; the oil is lighter and stays on top.

Thus, in the case of our oil-and-water world, the water, influenced by gravity, takes the form of a globular core, with a layer of oil outside—the whole thing a ball.

To be exact, geologists believe that the earth's inside is of iron or nickel-iron—a core of about half the whole earth's diameter—right at the center, because of the metal's predominant weight.

Toward this core's surface, the theory is that there is a strata of metal mixed with heavy rock; then less and less metal and more and more rock; then practically pure rock; then lighter and lighter rock; finally a superficial shell (estimated at from 35 to 70 miles thick) of the lightest rock of all—with water, a film of decayed animal and vegetable matter and an envelope of air outside.

The outer shell evidently still is in process of adjustment, readjustment and disturbance; the core, it is assumed, thoroughly stable.

These conclusions are not mere guesswork.

Science is able to calculate subterranean weights, densities and pressures very accurately.

Earthquakes likewise are enlightening. Seismographic records of the earth layers they have passed through. Yet the central core refuses to transmit them—whence it is inferred that it is a molten, liquid core, inasmuch as a liquid would balk in just that way.

Liquid! but a liquid, under enormous pressure, more rigid than steel.

A few collisions, welding smaller planets together, may have given the earth something of its present size, a good many geologists think.

Perhaps meteoric accretions added to it later.

There are geologists who believe that meteors, swept up in its travels, have added to it decidedly, but the more conservative among them question it—arguing that geologic history, even running, as it does, into the millions of years, does not allow time enough for such acquisitions to have made much impression.

PICNIC LUNCHEON

Chop Suey Small Ripe Tomatoes Assorted Sandwiches (Peanut Butter, Jelly or Lettuce and Egg for the children, and more highly seasoned ones for adults, cut different shapes to distinguish fillings) Oatmeal Cookies Pears and Plums Milk carried in pail of cracked ice

This picnic menu is not so elaborate that the one who prepares it is so tired she cannot enjoy the outing. The menu is one that is intended for children as well as adults. One hot dish is served.

Today's Recipes

Chop Suey—One pound boiling beef, one onion, one bunch carrots, one bunch celery, one teaspoon salt, one can bean sprouts, one tablespoon sugar, one tablespoon chop suey sauce, one tablespoon cornstarch. This recipe is not as rich as the ordinary chop suey and is an excellent one for children because of the quantity of vegetables. Cut beef in small pieces and brown in hot fat with the sliced onion. Place in cooker, add the vegetables cut fine (except the sprouts), salt and cook about 45 minutes until tender in water to cover them, add sprouts, the sauce and sugar and thicken with the cornstarch dissolved in a little water.

Potato Salad—One quart sliced potatoes, one medium onion, cut fine; one cup table celery, cut fine; one tomato, diced; one cucumber, diced, or one-half pickle; one cup boiled mayonnaise, dressing, one tablespoon salt. Mix ingredients together slightly, toss mixed dressing gently through it. Garnish, as desired, with parsley or hard-cooked eggs and sections of tomato. One cup diced ham may be added, if desired.

Queen Bee! cried Busy crossly. "You can't tell me anything about her. I've always heard she was a despot. But, poor thing, her ruling days are over when a new queen comes to town. Then her subjects turn upon her and drive her from the hive. To us ants that's a great crime we would not be guilty of. As long as she lives our queen is our queen, however many others may arrive in her lifetime. To the end of her majesty's life we love her. Which has the better of it, the Bee-ville's queen or ours?"

Next, "Every Ant Minds His Own Little Voice."

"Then aren't you a bit afraid of your ruler?" asked Peter. "Doesn't your queen ever cry 'Off with her head!' when one of you displeases her?" layers they have passed through. Yet the central core refuses to transmit them—whence it is inferred that it is a molten, liquid core, inasmuch as a liquid would balk in just that way.

"Well, it isn't, not in Ant Town. On the contrary, here our queen must do as her subjects tell her to!" chuckled Busy. "To be sure, when we ants have had one queen a long time we learn to honor her. And to our queen we go when we want advice or are in need of comfort. But there are lots of things we must do for ourselves—things we know how to do far better than she could tell us."

Yet the central core refuses to transmit them—whence it is inferred that it is a molten, liquid core, inasmuch as a liquid would balk in just that way.

"No Queen of the Ants ever gave such a command that I can remember. She wouldn't dare, unless we worker ants all agreed with her. No youngster, in Ant Town a queen rules by love but never by fear. That is one thing for you to remember."

"The Queen Bee—" began Peter, but got no further.

Avoid Fur in Asthma, Hay Fever

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

August 15 to 20 is a period which for many people in the United States, marks a dreaded time. It is the period of the onset of the fall type of hay fever. The spring type comes in late May or early June (rose fever so-called) and is usually over by June 10. Those who have both types get a respite for a month or six weeks and then the fall type begins.

The way we found out the nature of hay fever is quite extraordinary.

An English doctor named Henry Hyde Salter had a cat. The cat presented the household with kittens. The kittens were very cute, and Dr. Salter became attached to one or two and adopted them. Then Dr. Salter began to have spells of asthma—and his nose ran and his eyes watered. An extraordinary thought occurred to him, which was that he had the asthma only when he got near the kittens.

He told some of his friends about it and they naturally laughed at him. But he had some cousins who also occasionally had asthma, and one day one of them came to visit Dr. Salter. The doctor, just to try an experiment, told his cousin to take one of the kittens up on his lap. He did so, and in spite of the fact that previously he had been feeling perfectly well as soon as the kitten began to purr he was seized with an attack of asthma.

Finally, after a number of experiments, Dr. Salter wrote a book. This was in 1864. In the book he claimed that asthma and sneezing and running eyes could be caused by emanations from animals' fur. It was a long time before the medical profession accepted these ideas. In the meantime another English doctor, named Bostock, began to work on the hay fever problem. Hay fever and Dr. Salter's symptoms were much alike. Dr. Bostock showed that instead of being caused by animal emanations, hay fever is caused by plant emanations. The minute fertilizing particles of certain plants are blown off and fill the air at certain periods of the year. It is these pollen grains, too small to be seen by the naked eye, unless looked for closely, that are inhaled into the mucous membrane of the nose and there dissolved and absorbed. When this chemical is absorbed into the blood of the sensitive individual, it causes the running nose and eyes, the sneezing and asthma of hay fever.

The condition of being sensitive to these substances, whether they come from animals or plants, or other substances, is called allergy. About 10 per cent of the population have it in some form or other. The commonest form is fall hay fever. The condition is distinctly hereditary, and is transmitted by both fathers and mothers, i. e., in the male and female line. I know several sisters, brothers and sisters, fathers and sons, mothers and daughters, and mothers and sons of daughters who have it.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending cannot diagnose or give personal answers to letters from readers. Where questions are of general interest, however, they will be taken up, in order, in the daily column. ## Adopt Happy Attitude

By MRS. VIRGINIA LEE

WHEN I WAS a little girl and thought that my feet were much larger than those of my schoolmates, I felt very much abused thereby, and my mother used to say, "Be thankful you are not lame, my dear."

That wasn't so very much comfort to me at the time, because what I wanted was sympathy, not a reminder that I was not the most afflicted person in the world. But many, many times since I have been out in the world, when I have been tempted to repine, I have thought of phrase and cheered up.

You can always take one of two attitudes, you know. You can either think you are terribly unhappy and make the welkin ring with your lamentations.

Or you can "be thankful you're not lame," which may sound Pollyannaish and all that, but is, nevertheless, much more helpful. And makes you a much pleasanter person to have about.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have a very hard time trying to be happy. I am not good looking, and I cannot seem to attract any boys. I am very neat about my appearance and try in every way to be sociable, but just can't, and here is the reason: I have a wide space in my teeth, right in front. I keep them very clean, but I feel terrible about it, just the same."

"I was keeping company with a very handsome young man for two years. Everything went fine, and he and many others told me he was crazy about me. We loved each other dearly until he got working in a place and a crowd of fellows got him going with them and also got him drinking. I broke off with him as he has a terrible temper and would probably get drunk often and use it. We were to have been married this coming October."

"I am now going with a fellow 15 to 20 years older than myself. He has been wonderful to me, helping me to forget the one I loved."

"Now, dear Miss Lee, I am going to admit that I have a terribly funny disposition, but it is because I am ashamed to smile on account of this terrible space. Everybody thinks I am cranky. The girls I go with like me because I smile, and have a good time with them, but I can't do it in front of fellows. I imagine they all turn away and want to go when they see my teeth."

At the risk of offending you I could answer it better that way. Many people have the very slight affliction you speak of, but, dear, you can make your smile so bright that no one will notice that there is a space between your teeth, or even if they do, they won't care anything about it. I am not kidding you when I say this. I know it to be true. Why imagine if you had a harelip, a terrible scar, or some other real deformity, and be thankful.

Did you ever think to visit a good dentist and ask him if anything could be done to draw your teeth closer together? I suppose the teeth might be drawn out and two larger artificial ones put in, if you wanted to give up your own teeth and take substitutes. It would probably be expensive.

Two young men have loved you, when girls, who acknowledge that they are attractive, write me to know how they shall attract even one man as they are never noticed. So I don't imagine you are so very unattractive. As you grow older you will find that such little things don't matter at all. So cheer up, let the natural smiles come, and I'm sure you won't find the men running the other way. They are much like girls, you know, and it's a jolly person.

MISS R.: Nothing can be done about it. You'll just have to wait until you're older. In the meantime, why not learn how to write grammatically and how to spell? I thought you were a ten-year-old girl when I first saw your handwriting.

Salt Baths Refreshing on Hot Days

By GLADYS GLAD

"America's Most Famous Beauty"

DURING THE blistering hot weather, the bath tub becomes the most popular place in the house. The night and morning baths are essential, of course, to cleanliness. But those of us who are not compelled to be in offices bathe even more frequently than that, merely to cool ourselves.

Undoubtedly, the thorough warm bath should be taken in the evening to remove from the body the dust, grime and heavy perspiration of the hot day. The morning bath need be no more than a refreshing "dip." The numerous baths that you may take during the day as relief from the heat should be nothing more than cool or lukewarm "dips." A very bland soap should be used as an accessory to such baths.

If soap is used on the body too frequently, it will cause the skin to become dry and itchy. Persons who have any skin disorders should at all times be careful about the kind of soap they use.

It is always essential to use the mildest kind of soap in bathing, and when the baths are very frequent, the need for special care in the selection of the kind of soap you use is extremely important.

The average skin, subjected to too frequent strong soap and water ablutions, is likely to develop dryness. Showers, or rinses in a tub full of clear water are always necessary after a soap and water cleansing, but few persons heed this precaution.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS FRAMED by Phil

The post-season series, which will bring together the 1930 city softball champs and an all-star team selected from among the other league teams, will provide, if nothing else, an interesting comparison of the relative merits of the outside seam ball and the inside seam sphere, as well as the advantages or disadvantages of playing games with the bases sixty feet instead of forty-five feet distant.

Managers of local softball teams decided upon the experiment of playing this benefit series with sixty-foot bases and the inside seam ball to determine whether it might be more interesting to carry out this idea next season.

The present short distance between bases and the outside seam balls with their rough edges have both been the subject of considerable criticism this season and it would perhaps be advisable to change over to something new in the hope the sport will be improved.

The coming series, which will start next Friday night, will be three out of five games and an admission of a dime will be charged. It being the hope of the Xenia Playground Association that enough money will be raised to pay off all debts incurred this season and create a fund with which to start off on next year.

This department was, is now, and always will be in favor of regulation sixty-foot bases in the interest of giving fielders an even chance with the batters; that is, giving them more time to field ground balls in order to throw out a batter at first or second or any other base. We were originally against the inside seam ball but that was because the livelier sphere would give batters an even greater edge on infielders and outfielders. With the bases extended fifteen feet this advantage would be offset to a great extent no doubt.

The managers did the correct thing in voting down the proposal to permit the players to wear cleated shoes in the coming post-season series. Few members of any of the teams know anything about the right method of sliding into bases, or of touching a runner sliding into a base, and cleated shoes, it goes almost without saying, would result in many injuries from the spikes.

It remained for a softball fan and sportsman who does not live in Xenia, although he formerly resided here, to offer a suitable reward for the team winning the annual softball championship of this city.

Jim Kelly, who backs Dayton's entry in a professional basketball league, presented the Xenia Playground Association with a beautiful silver trophy to be awarded the 1930 Xenia softball champs and the gift is deeply appreciated by the association.

The former Xenian did not stipulate whether the trophy is to be contested for every year or whether it may be possessed permanently by the team winning the title this season, but possible it would be better to put it on a three-year basis. Then the first team to win the championship three years, commencing this season, could keep it always.

Wouldn't it be funny—but not to the Cincinnati Reds—if "Long George" Kelly, Red catcher, should actually help the Chicago Cubs win the National League pennant this season. Given his unconditional release by the Reds some time ago, Kelly joined the Minneapolis team of the American Association. He has now been acquired by the Cubs in a deal which sent Malcolm Moss, southpaw rookie pitcher, to the Millers, on optional recall. The lanky first baseman is a seasoned veteran of thirteen years in the major leagues and he should bolster the Cubs in their drive down the stretch. Kelly was obtained after Charley Grimm, Cub captain and first baseman, was injured. Since Grimm will be on the shelf with a lame leg for two weeks or more, "Long George" should see immediate service. He has been hitting .354 for the Millers.

Paul Fetz, who loyally followed the fortunes of the Critterian softball team through an adverse season, missed his proteges on the occasion when they rose to the supreme zenith of their power, smashed the lofty Downtown Country Club team and there and then ended the National League season. Fetz, usually on first row bleacher seat during games, is laid up at home with an infected foot but hopes to be able to see the two series planned.

INFIRMARY INMATE REMOVED BY DEATH

Stewart Beach, 83, died at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Greene County Infirmary, where he had been an inmate for the last five years. Death was due to infirmities of age.

He was born in Lumberton, southeast of Xenia but had lived here many years and was a miller known to many as "Derby" Beach. There are no close relatives surviving.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Thursday at the Infirmary chapel with burial in Woodland cemetery.

CADDIES SURPRISE KI-RO WITH VICTORY IN FINAL LEAGUE GAME

Finis was written on the current American League softball season at the athletic field Tuesday night when the C. C. Caddies surprised everyone, including themselves probably, with an unexpected 11 to 9 victory over Ki-Ro-Rotary in a ten-inning contest that brought this league's schedule to a close.

The Caddies came through with their winning rally in the first half of the tenth round after two outs had been made when Fletcher singled, Shaffer doubled and Harner singled, scoring two runs.

The season's finale in this league was a sea-saw affair with the lead changing hands frequently. Each team was credited with fourteen hits.

Russ Kimber, Ki-Ro pitcher, smacked two home runs in consecutive times at bat in the fourth and fifth innings, but in each instance the bases were devoid of occupants at the time. Shaffer, with a brace of doubles and a single, and Fletcher, with three singles, topped the offensive of the winners.

Hornick pitched for the Caddies. He hurled a better brand of ball as the game progressed and held Ki-Ro to three-hits in the last six innings.

The Lang Chevrolet Co. and Geyers will furnish the entertainment Wednesday night, the latter team having a chance to wind up in second place in the National League.

LANG CHEVROLETS AND SPRINGFIELD TEAM PLAY 5-5 TIE

Playing a return game, the Lang Chevrolets and the St. Paul Lutheran Church team of Springfield struggled for seven innings to a 5 to 5 draw Tuesday night on the International Harvester Co. diamond at Springfield.

Langs jumped into the lead by scoring three runs in the first round, but Dundon, Springfield pitcher, tightened down and held the Xenia team scoreless until the seventh, when Langs tallied two more runs.

Gibney was the starting pitcher for Langs and was nipped for one run in the first and three more in the second stanza. Harry Williams pitched the last three innings, allowing one hit and one run in the sixth.

Langs outbatted the church team, thirteen to nine. Lineups:

Tuesday was observed as "Ladies' Day" at the Bobby Lou midget golf course and of the large number of feminine miniature golfers who entered the competition, Miss Jeanne Compton, S. Galloway St., negotiated the course in fifty-five strokes, the second lowest score of the day.

SILVER TROPHY TO BE AWARDED CITY CHAMPIONS IN SOFTBALL

A handsome silver trophy, emblematic of the 1930 softball championship of Xenia, will become the temporary or perhaps permanent property of the winner of the forthcoming city championship series between the Krippendorf-Dittman Co., American League champions, and the Lang Chevrolet Co., title winners in the National League.

The trophy is the gift of Jim Kelly, Dayton, former Xenian, who did not stipulate, however, whether it is to be contested for annually or be retained permanently by the team winning the city title here this season. This point is expected to be decided upon later.

At present the award is on display in one of the show windows at the Hutchison and Gibney department store, N. Detroit St. It is mounted and on the top stands a figure depicting in miniature a pitcher in the act of throwing a ball. To be technically correct, the figure is throwing the ball over-hand whereas softball pitchers must pitch under-hand.

The gift is sincerely appreciated.

BOWERSVILLE WINS FROM SPRINGFIELD IN WEIRD CONTEST

In a game marred to some extent by fourteen errors, the Bowersville Independents scored a one-sided 14 to 4 victory over the Avalon baseball team at Springfield Sunday afternoon, marking Bowersville's second victory over this team this season.

Lucas, Bowersville pitcher, allowed only one hit in the first six innings. Bock, first baseman, cracked out a triple and three singles, his three-bagger coming in the seventh with the bases loaded. Baker, left fielder, performed the rare feat of scoring five runs and he also did well at bat, contributing three hits.

Following the game with the Avalons, the Independents played five innings by agreement with the "Eddie Tailors" nine, a strong Springfield colored nine, and the result was a draw, the score being 3 to 3. K. Conklin pitched this abbreviated contest for Bowersville.

Bowersville desires to play a three-game series with some team within Greene County, starting September 14. Xenia, Osborn, Jamestown and any other clubs having a home diamond are asked to take notice. For particulars write G. A. Bock, Bowersville.

Next Sunday the Independents will face a Yellow Springs team at Bowersville.

Ripley clipped all time records in his quick rise to overwhelming popularity . . . because he gave a new thrill. And that's OLD GOLD'S story too.

A 12-year-old boy who ran away from his home in Dayton Tuesday because he feared a whipping after he had been scolded by his mother for disobedience, started out to walk to Washington, C. The youth had walked all the way from his home—a distance of about twenty-seven miles—and was dirty, ragged and hungry. He gave his name as Francis Irvin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Irvin, St. Charles St., Dayton.

Dr. R. L. Haines, county coroner, notified John Baughn, village marshal, who communicated with the lad's parents. The anxious mother and father had instituted a search for the boy.

READ THIS FIRST:

Kitty Wilmut, secretary to Elery Goss, assists Gordon Platt, Goss' confidential man, with whom she is daily falling in love, in running down a "leak" in the office; Altee Goss' chief clerk, asks her to marry him. She does not accept. After meeting Boss Kelliher at a party given by Hilda, "phone operator," she is later accosted by him, and he asks her to work for him at a thousand dollars a month.

Next day, in the East Side Natatorium, she defeats a professional swimmer in an impromptu race. She is shocked when Platt tells her a gambler, Tom Gayle, won a five thousand dollar bet on her, and indignantly rejects the money Gayle tried to pay as her share. She tells Platt about Kelliher's offer; Platt thinks it indicates Kelliher's connection with the leak.

Determined to be more active in helping Gordon, although not yet ready to confess Altee's actions or knowledge of Kelliher, Kitty asks help of Hilda's Spike Harden, through whom she gets the idea of employing a private detective agency. She finds "Henderson" in the "phone book, but on being shown into a private office as "Miss Smith," she is shocked to be greeted by Tom Gayle, the gambler Gordon said had bet on her.

Next day in East Side Natatorium she defeats a professional swimmer in an impromptu race, but is shocked when Platt tells her a gambler, Tom Gayle, won a five thousand dollar bet on her and indignantly rejects money Gayle offers her through Platt.

Wanting to help Platt, but not ready to tell all she knows of Altee, Kitty asks help of Spike Harden, who suggests a private detective agency, where she is shocked to find Gayle, the gambler who bet on her, in charge. But she is happy to learn that Platt returned his money, and falls asleep the night dreaming of the kiss Platt never tried to give her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 23

Kitty expected nothing from Gayle's report. "Poor little Bert Croymond," as she thought of him, was obviously just a family friend of the Ayers, and had no connection with Wall Street or the "leak." Kitty felt that mean at putting him under espionage.

"But, of course, he'll never know, so it really doesn't make any difference!" she comforted herself. "It's not a nice way to act, after his being so chivalrous on the train—but I couldn't think of any one else."

Thinking thus, she ran lightly up the steps of her boarding house, resolving for the thousandth time to move. She wanted a little apartment of her own; perhaps to share one with some other girl. Money considerations had prevented her from doing so, so far. Her salary was ample, but her promise to send money to John Spurgeon stood in the way; she saw too much misery resulting from lack of a reserve fund now to save for a while before she added more expenses to her budget. If she had not sent John practically all she had she would have moved long before. She sighed as she thought of it—paying one's debts was sometimes hard. Yet John had been very good to her, and she knew in her heart that not marrying him had been a hard blow to him.

She let herself in with her latch key and looked on the hall table for letters. There was none for her, but a card stared up to her; "Mr. John Spurgeon."

She turned, wondering; between the porters of the boarding house, a door stood her home town friend.

"Why, John!" she cried, putting out both hands, dropping her bag in excitement. "What a surprise. What brings you to New York?"

He took her hands hungrily, his eyes longing. Something in their dumb look of misery touched Kitty's heart. She pulled her hands from his, put them on his shoulders and stood on tiptoes to kiss him.

He flushed a bright red. "I—I didn't expect that!" he said, thickly. "Oh, Kitty I have missed you so much!"

"That's nice!" she smiled blushing a little at the warmth of his voice. Perhaps it would have been better not to have brought up anything. "But tell me what brings you here! Sit down, so, and tell me everything. How is your mother?"

Purleon gulped. "It's that Mother has brought me here!" he confessed. "She—she's in rather desperate straits, I am sorry to say. They've done all they can for her—it's her eyes, I'm told I must take her to an eye clinic abroad, or she'll go blind."

"When do you start?" asked Kitty. "What can I do?"

"I don't know when I start. You've done all a woman can do—Kitty I'm so ashamed I had to take that money and I haven't been able to pay it back—this has been a horribly expensive matter—"

Kitty held up a hand. "John Spurgeon! I don't need it—I've oodles every day! Forget it, do! When do you start?"

"When I can turn the small capital I have into several thousand dollars to start with!" he burst out. "That's what I'm here for."

"Oh, I wish I had it to give you!" cried Kitty. "Maybe I can borrow some—"

"No!" He almost shouted the words. "I have a plan. I don't need any more help, from you! But I had to see you first—"

He tried to take his mind off his troubles, talking of Hillerton, the country club, the swimming meets all their little diversions. She asked about many old friends and listened with more earnestness than she knew to familiar names, visualizing them as he spoke of them. But she was conscious of a great gulf—Hillerton was very far away in thought as well as fact.

"—remember the time I took you to the Hunt Club dance?" he was saying. "I've never forgotten—I'd sure like to dance with you again!"

Kitty thought rapidly. Why not? As another couple and make a party of it! Night club; dance; show John a good time for one evening, anyway—poor Mrs. Spurgeon! Might go blind; Oh, why didn't she know some way to make some easy, quick money? A blinding flash of thought passed through her mind, but she shuddered away from it. She could not—not even for John could she go to take Kelliher's fake job. Besides, John needed thousands, not a thousand—never mind. The thing now was to give him a happy evening.

"So you shall dance with me!" she cried. "Mr. Spurgeon will you be my escort this evening and let me play hostess? I'm inviting you to a party!"

"What kind of a party?" he stammered, somewhat taken back by her swift reaction.

"Dancing party, of course! You shall take me out to supper and I'll get a couple of friends and we'll make an evening of it!"

"But—but—" he began, but she put up a protesting hand. Whom should she ask? Sally and Joe? Baby and Altee? Hilda and Spike? She laughed at that idea. Patty Hemming and any one he wanted to bring? Or change them around and ask Sally and Altee? Or Gordon? But Kitty balked. To ask the man who was in her mind a successful suitor—Kitty did not disguise to herself her vivid interest in the mysterious partner who had so evil a reputation and was so interesting and so attractive—to a party in which she tried to amuse and please the man who wanted her and whom she had rejected, was hardly fair. She decided against Gordon with a little sigh of regret. After all she would have to devote her time to John; to see Gordon with another girl, even if it were Sally or Baby, in whom she knew he would have no personal interest, was an unnecessary torture.

She decided to ask Baby and Altee.

She stepped to the telephone, and in spite of John's anxious request to "wait a minute, I'm not sure—" she called Baby on the wire.

"Baby? Kitty talking! Old friend in town tonight. Want to throw a party for him. Will you bring Altee and meet me at the Chez Moi—or shall I call for you? What? No, I don't care—Bert, if you want, or Patty. He's John Spurgeon. I used to know him at home. Yes, he's a fellow! All right, bring any boy friend you want—Chez Moi at nine!"

She turned to her old friend, "Baby Ayers is a good little scout," she began, wondering in her heart if Baby really reserved the appellation. "The Chez Moi is one of the best places. She'll get one of my new friends—Altee Wainwright or Bert Croymond or Fadel Hemming, and we'll have a nice party—"

"But, my dear girl!" John Spurgeon was obviously distressed. "Don't you understand? I can't—I am not—I haven't very much—"

"Listen, John!" Kitty put her hands on his shoulders again. "You can't do anything about business tonight! I want to throw a party for you—so you can dance with me again! It won't cost you anything but time!"

She pretended not to understand him; but she knew he was protesting that he had no money to waste on parties, he who had come to New York to raise several thousands to take his mother away. But she had plenty for the party; and whoever Baby brought would settle anyway.

She took him to the quietest place she could remember for dinner—a Chop House, where they had the usual mutton chop and salad with a deep dish pie for desert. She had dressed in her prettiest, but refused to remove her wrap at dinner, preferring to show herself in the evening gown amidst the proper surroundings later on.

Baby brought Patty Hemming as her escort. To Kitty's surprise, John got on with him famously. The Chez Moi is a rather quiet club, with good music and an unusually large dance floor. Kitty had chosen it that John Spurgeon might not be shocked. Patty danced with her, and she thanked him for being nice to her friend; then, innocently, she told him a little of John's reason for being in New York. But before she could complete the story she caught sight of a well known and much loved figure; through the door into the dance floor came Gordon Platt. With him was a gorgeous girl in vivid green and highly made up, snake like, slender, a pale straw blond.

The sudden jealous clutch at Kitty's heart was revealing of her feeling; but it was Mary Pickford has just thrown away an entire talking picture, representing two months work and an investment of $250,000 because, when she saw the picture projected, it didn't interest her. Mary reasoned that if the picture didn't interest her it wouldn't interest an audience.

The picture discarded was "Secrets," the country to determine whom they consider the foremost director—a poll of those most qualified to judge—is an extremely important event; at least to those under consideration. "To be placed on that list is, I believe, the highest honor a director can achieve. I hope I can impress upon you the sincerity of my gratitude for your vote. Also I would like to convey to you my sincere desire never to violate the confidence you have placed in me. "Thanking you again for your important part in locating me high on the list, I am

"Sincerely
"Clarence Brown."

Mary is considering her next picture "Kiki," the vivacious and somewhat risqué French comedy made silent a few years ago by Norma Talmadge. Miss Pickford can't decide if the story is too risqué for her. "Would people like me as Kiki?" she asks. Modern picture patrons are so sophisticated. I am afraid some little boy would blurt out "Oh, yeah?" when Kiki says she spent a week in a gentleman's apartment and is still a good girl.

Mary has a horror of doing anything that would shock people. She wants to do comedy and thinks the trend of public taste is in that direction. Talking pictures, she believes, were bad for Hollywood because they put up false gods for the producer to worship. Dialogue should be incidental, she insists, and kept subordinate to action. Sound films also lost the world market for Hollywood, but that doesn't bother her because her pictures only count on foreign markets for 7 per cent of their gross.

Mary says she is a golf widow now and that Fairbanks' mania for playing may have caused the gossip about their separation, which she soundly denied.

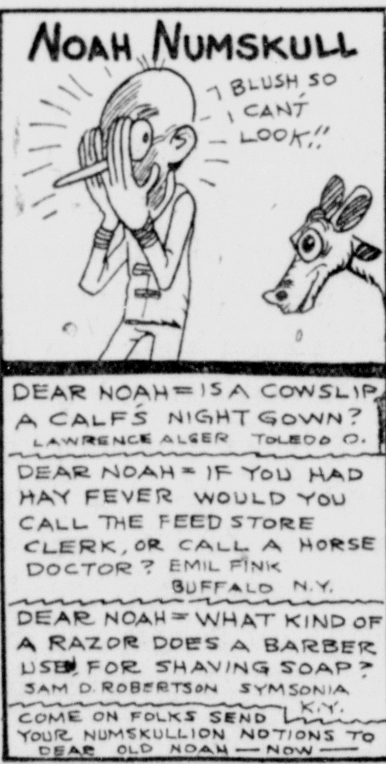

Clarence Brown, the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer director, who was picked among the ten best directors of the year in the Film Daily's poll by this writer, on the strength of his direction of Greta Garbo in "Anna Christie," writes to convey his thanks. His letter: "I would like to take this opportunity of expressing my deep appreciation of the honor you paid me by including my name on your list of the ten best directors. ## ACCUSED OF ATTACK ON COLORED CHILD, MAN TO FACE TRIAL

Charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor in connection with an alleged attempt to make a criminal assault upon a 13-year-old Xenia colored girl last Saturday, Edgar A. Manuel, 35, of Kenwood Ave., Dayton, white, entered a not guilty plea when arraigned in Juvenile Court Tuesday afternoon.

Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy, presiding on the bench in the absence of Juvenile S. C. Wright, who is on his vacation, assigned Manuel's hearing for Thursday, September 4 and fixed his bond at $300.

An affidavit against Manuel filed by the mother, charged the Dayton man induced her daughter to accompany him away from her home in his car on the pretext he was taking her to his mother's home on Home Ave., this city, to work for her. Instead, the affidavit accuses him of having taken her into the country alone the Federal Pike and making improper advances toward her.

The girl, according to the story told county authorities by the mother, jumped from the auto and ran.

Traced through the license number on his machine, Manuel was arrested by Dayton police Monday and was brought to the County Jail, where authorities say he was identified by both the girl and her mother as the child's assailant.

(B) The specially designed fuel-saving fire-pot with locomotive grates and other features. You can see why this furnace is guaranteed for 10 years and why its average life, based on the service records of thousands of Torrid Zones, is 21 years.

Fumes can never drift up from a Torrid Zone Warm Air Furnace to annoy the family in the dining-room, living-room or in any other part of the house. It is made of steel plate, rolled in the same mills that make armor plate for battleships. It is really an air-tight steel drum.

For just as the submarine is made air-tight by being hot riveted and cold-calked . . . so the steel Torrid Zone Furnace is made gas, smoke and dust-tight.

. . . Made gas, smoke and dust-tight to shield your family from fumes that poison; to protect your home from smudgy smoke and dust. No more dingy ceilings. No more discolored wallpaper or sooty draperies and upholstery.

With a Torrid Zone you also get proper humidity and air circulation. The humidifier has twice the evaporating area inside the casing of ordinary water pans. Rapid evaporation is also necessary, so it is placed right over the firing doors where it gets the most heat possible. Proper air circulation is guaranteed, when an authorized Lennox Furnace man installs according to the Standard Code. Indeed, with this furnace in your home you have the satisfaction of knowing you own the finest heating plant science has ever devised.

Your Torrid Zone Steel Furnace will produce 10% to 20% more heat from the fuel than other furnaces, hence will heat your home with less fuel than any other furnace would consume. It will burn soft coal, coke, hard coal, lignite, wood, gas or oil.

Letter from salesman
economy of the car

IN THE past two years, many new Fords have been driven 50,000, 75,000 and even 100,000 miles. Everywhere the car has made an unusual record for reliability and economy. Following is a letter from a salesman who travels long distances daily by automobile.

"I purchased a Model A Coupe May 8, 1928, and at this writing have run it 75,383 miles.

"After I had driven 44,400 miles, I spent $45.08 in repairs and at 61,000 miles had an additional amount of work done costing $25.60. My tire mileage has averaged better than 13,000 miles.

"I am a traveling man and my territory is from northern Virginia to Macon, Mississippi, and from Knoxville, Tennessee, to the Atlantic Ocean."

Similar tributes to the new Ford come to us daily from individual owners, from Federal and City Bureaus and from large industrial companies having fleets of several hundred cars.

They have found, as you will find, that the low cost of operation and up-keep on the Ford is even more important than the low first cost of the car. In twenty, thirty, or fifty thousand miles, this saving frequently amounts to hundreds of dollars. The quality that has been built into the car is reflected in its good performance and long life.

See the Ford dealer and have him take you for a demonstration ride in the new Ford. Give it a severe test in traffic, on steep hills and on the open road. Check up on comfort, safety, speed, power, acceleration. Talk with Ford owners and experienced garage men and note what they say about reliability and economy.

Then you will know, from your own experience, that the new Ford brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.

MANY CONFLICTING REPORTS CLOUD MRS. MCPHERSON'S CASE

Deny She's Seriously Ill;
Mother Says She Was
Smacked

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 20.—Out of the welter of reports concerning Aimee Semple McPherson, noted evangelist, and her mother, Mrs. Minnie Kennedy, the public today mulled over a series of rumors which ran the gamut from the somewhat bizarre charge of "snake-throwing" to broken noses and "face-lifting."

With both Mrs. McPherson and her mother under the care of physicians, the situation today was a mass of contradictions.

From Angelus Temple sources came word that Mrs. McPherson was "near death" in her closely-guarded Malibu Beach cottage.

Her physician, Dr. Edward M. Williams, stated, however, that her condition was not serious and that she would probably be up in a day or two.

Reports that Mrs. McPherson was blind were denied by Dr. Williams.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Kennedy is at a Brentwood sanitarium, where she is being treated for a broken nose. She accused her daughter of smiting her on that organ.

Mrs. Kennedy said she and her daughter quarreled over reports concerning the evangelist and her secretary, Miss Mae Waldron.

"She called me to her house," said Mrs. Kennedy. "She acted as if she were wild when I got there. She accused me of talking about Miss Waldron and herself. I denied this, but I did tell her I said something about some of her associates."

CREDIT FOR DROUGHT SUFFERERS FAVORED

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 20.—A motion favoring the organization of a credit organization to make available in Ohio funds from the Intermediate Credit Bank, of Louisville, to farmers affected by the drought, today had been adopted by committee members from the Ohio Bankers' Association, who went into conference with Governor Myers Y. Cooper Tuesday afternoon.

Under this plan according to the bankers committee and the governor, the credit corporation would have an initial capital of $250,000 to be subscribed by the banks of Ohio. The credit organization would serve to back the Ohio farmers so that they might obtain funds from the Intermediate Credit Bank, of Louisville.

Credit in this new organization, the committee said, would be available to farmers whose credit has been good before.

LONE BANDIT GETS $3,950

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 20.—Search was pressed here today for the daring bandit who slugged Leon Hall, 28, messenger for the Merchants Savings and Banking Co., and robbed him of a package containing $3,950.

Hall told police that he was standing in a doorway waiting for a street car to take him to the Central United National Bank, when his assailant seized him by the necktie from behind and dragged him into the shadows of the doorway. The robber clubbed his victim into unconsciousness and fled with the loot.

DESPONDENCY OVER MONEY MATTERS IS CAUSE FOR SUICIDE

Charles B. Mason Ends
Life Tuesday With
Pistol

Worry over money matters was ascribed as the reason for the suicide of Charles Benjamin Mason, 54, who died from a self-inflicted bullet wound in his head Monday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at his home three miles east of Xenia.

Mason shot himself at 1:30 o'clock. According to his wife's version of the affair, as told to Dr. R. L. Haines, Jamestown, county coroner, who investigated, Mason left the house early Tuesday morning and took his .38 caliber revolver with him, saying he was going to shoot rats.

Returning home about noon, he sat down to his meal and after eating, discussed finances with his wife. Finally, he arose, and with the remark he intended to end it all, walked into an adjoining room and fired a bullet from the revolver into his head behind the right ear.

Mr. Mason moved to Greene County from London, O., about three months ago. He was part owner of a meat store in London and because business was poor he was reported to have been on the verge of closing the store.

A son, John Mason, operates the Union Meat Co., Xenia. A stepdaughter, who lived with Mr. and Mrs. Mason, and a step-son, residing in London, also survive.

Private funeral services will be held at the funeral parlors of J. H. Whitmer, local undertaker, at 2 o'clock Thursday afternoon with burial in Woodland Cemetery.

WINGLESS PLANE COMING NEXT

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—An airplane without wings, which would revolutionize the aircraft industry, if proved practical, is being secretly developed in Long Island Sound. It was reported today. The craft is an air adaptation of the Flettner rotor ship.

Several successful test flights were understood to have already been made. Public test flights will be made shortly.

MERGER OPPONENTS RESUME ATTACK IN STEEL LITIGATION

Director Admits He Had
System

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 20.—After a brief intermission yesterday in which another crack was taken at the Bethlehem Steel Corporation bonus system, attorneys opposing the merger of the concern with Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co. today resumed their attack in Common Pleas Court here against the terms of the consolidation.

Recalling Henry G. Dalton, director in both Sheet and Tube and Bethlehem, to the witness stand yesterday, anti-merger attorneys elicited an admission from the financier that he had a vague knowledge of the Bethlehem bonus system under which Eugene G. Grace has received more than $1,000,000 a year as president.

Dalton said, however, that he did not mention the bonus system to Sheet and Tube directors prior to their approval of the merger contract, but that he would have "had it come to my mind."

The witness testified that had he known on March 12 what he knows today of the bonus system, he would have told the Sheet and Tube directors about it "because it had become an important topic and should be discussed."

During this testimony, Judge David G. Jenkins who is hearing the suit against the merger, interposed the remark that "the question of the amounts paid under the bonus system and their propriety has absolutely nothing to do with the question this court has to determine."

"The question here," Judge Jenkins said, "is simply whether its operation and its effect on the combined properties should or should not have been given as information to the Youngstown directors before they passed on the merger, and in the second place to the stockholders before they voted on its ratification."

ARREST DISCOVERS EMBEZZLEMENT PLOT

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 20.—An embezzlement plot in which more than $5,000 was involved was believed to be uncovered today with the arrest of three men. The men are held in jail here in connection with the disappearance of $3,000 from Aulse, Inc., jewelry manufacturing company.

Among the men who were taken into custody is Chester Kiefhaber, 32, superintendent of the Aulse factory. Kiefhaber according to officials, has admitted that during the past year, he has taken a nugget and leaf gold amounting to approximately $3,000 from the Aulse factory.

Kiefhaber, who was arrested with the other suspects, is alleged to have confessed that he sold the stolen metal to another local jewelry firm.

SECOND ALLEGED SLAYER GOES ON TRIAL WEDNESDAY FOR MURDER

GEORGETOWN, O., Aug. 20.—The murder trial of John Zeller, 24, of Cincinnati, who is charged with slaying Robert Clemens, 65-year-old farmer of Kimballs Ford, opened in the Brown County common pleas court here today.

Zeller is charged with first-degree murder in connection with the fatal shooting last May 13 of the aged farmer.

Charles Cramer, 31, of Hamilton, was found guilty of a similar charge two months ago and is now in "death row" at Ohio State penitentiary. He has been sentenced to die in the electric chair October 11.

Two others, who are said to have been implicated in the murder are awaiting trial. They are Fred Davis, 26, and Charles Johnson, 26, both of Cincinnati.

Clemens was shot four times the night of last May 13 after he had answered a call to help the men push an automobile out of a creek near his home. The four men were arrested the following day at Cincinnati.

The farmer identified Cramer and Davis as two of his assailants before he died. His wounds proved fatal two days later. Cramer and Davis confessed, police say, and implicated Zeller and Johnson.

The three Springfield youths were linked with the series of robberies through the discovery of a bullet-ridden car, owned by Loy, found abandoned near London, O., two days after a filling station hold-up at Washington C. H. In the names of Loy and Snyder, car.

Following this robbery, the youths had a hard time evading the law. They drove to Jamestown, where village authorities had been forewarned, and found the main street barricaded. Turning around the fugitives led a posse of half a hundred citizens a merry chase in and out of country roads, finally making their escape after an exchange of shots with two village officers at South Charleston.

John Duffy, 21, the other youth in custody, has been identified along with Snyder as having participated in the hold-up of a filling station proprietor at West Jefferson, who was robbed of $17.40 several weeks ago.

Snyder and Duffy were turned over to Madison County authorities for prosecution and will be arraigned in London on highway robbery charges as most of the alleged offenses occurred in that county. A warrant will be sent to Kenton, O., for the arrest of Loy immediately. It was said.

Following this robbery, the youths had a hard time evading the law. They drove to Jamestown, where village authorities had been forewarned, and found the main street barricaded. Turning around the fugitives led a posse of half a hundred citizens a merry chase in and out of country roads, finally making their escape after an exchange of shots with two village officers at South Charleston.

John Duffy, 21, the other youth in custody, has been identified along with Snyder as having participated in the hold-up of a filling station proprietor at West Jefferson, who was robbed of $17.40 several weeks ago.

Snyder and Duffy were turned over to Madison County authorities for prosecution and will be arraigned in London on highway robbery charges as most of the alleged offenses occurred in that county. A warrant will be sent to Kenton, O., for the arrest of Loy immediately. It was said.

YOUTH ADMITS MANY ROBBERIES, A U T O THEFTS NEAR XENIA

Implicates Three Others;
Clears Up Rob-
beries Here

Numerous auto thefts and robberies which have occurred in Xenia, Dayton and nearby cities in recent weeks are believed to have been cleared up by the alleged confession of William H. Snyder, 22, of 1621 N. Yellow Springs St., Springfield, under arrest in that city.

Further questioning by authorities has elicited details of an amazing career of crime on the part of Snyder and three other Springfield youths whom Snyder implicated, according to Police Chief O. H. Cornwell, who was in Springfield Tuesday night.

Snyder implicated Alfred W. Neumann, Arnott Loy and John Duffy, it is said, as having participated with him in numerous holdups and robberies.

Only one of these boys, however, is in the custody of police as Neumann died from injuries suffered in an auto accident near Kenton, O., August 14 and Loy is a patient in a Kenton hospital recuperating from injuries sustained in the same crash. The accident occurred when a car driven by Snyder skidded from the road and smashed into a tree.

Snyder confessed, Chief Cornwell said, to having stolen a Buick sedan, bearing a dealer's license and belonging to M. H. Daily, Wilmington, from Wilson's swimming pool here June 30. He admitted the theft of a Studebaker car, owned by Harry Rich, Xenia, Aug. 1. The car was later abandoned at Wilmington after Snyder and his companions had robbed a filling station there.

The youth charged that Loy and Neumann were responsible for the robbery at the Roy V. Hull filling station on Dayton Ave., here about a week ago in which the attendant was forced to hand over about $35 from the cash register. Snyder drove away in a Ford coupe later identified as having been stolen earlier the same evening at Fairfield.

According to Snyder's confession, he and his companions were also responsible for the theft of another auto in Xenia either July 11 or July 12. Police have not ascertained definitely whether the stolen Anderson Kent-A-Car agency or was machine was that belonging to the one owned by Purdon and McFarland, local auto agency.

The three Springfield youths were linked with the series of robberies through the discovery of a bullet-ridden car, owned by Loy, found abandoned near London, O., two days after a filling station hold-up at Washington C. H. In the names of Loy and Snyder, car.

FORMER PRESIDENT OF HIRAM COLLEGE REMOVED BY DEATH

Noted Educator Mourned
By Many; Burial
Friday

HIRAM, O., Aug. 20.—Educators, former students and religious circles throughout the state and country today mourned the passing of Dr. Miner Lee Bates, 61, former president of Hiram College, who died at Women's Hospital in Cleveland last night after a serious illness of ten days.

Funeral services for Dr. Bates, who during his lifetime held many prominent positions in the Christian Disciples Church, will be held here in the town where he was renowned as an educator, at 2 p. m. Friday. He will be buried in the Hiram cemetery.

Dr. Bates, a native of Fairfield, Mich., died last night shortly after eight o'clock. His wife and his son, Dr. Gaylord Bates of Detroit, were at the bedside when the end came.

Death followed a long period of failing health. Dr. Bates resigned as president of Hiram College last November and accepted the pastorate of a church in Kingston, N. C. His physicians believed that a change of climate would benefit his health.

After a vacation at the summer home of his daughter, Mrs. Earl Cummins of Wooster, in Vermont, Dr. Bates returned here recently. He became stricken ten days ago and his condition grew steadily worse. Dr. Bates is survived by his widow by a second marriage, two sons, Dr. Bates of Detroit, and Rev. Searle Bates, a missionary in the Philippines, and a daughter, Mrs. Cummins wife of a Wooster college president.

LINER PASSENGERS PRAISE DARING OF STEAMER OFFICERS

Desperate Efforts Kept
Stricken Ship
Afloat

PAGO PAGO, American Samoa, Aug. 20.—Passengers of the sunken steamer Tahiti, who were brought here aboard the rescue ship, Ventura, today told of the expert seamanship on the part of both captains which permitted the transfer of passengers and crew in a rough sea without a single casualty.

The rescue ship under the command of Captain W. E. Meyer steamed close to the Tahiti while the 252 persons were taken aboard in small boats. The passengers praised the coolness of Captain T. A. Totten of the Tahiti in keeping the foundering ship afloat until rescue arrived.

Working below decks and in darkness the engineers and members of the steward's department rigged up emergency pumps and, with hand pumps and buckets, poured water from holds three and four in a desperate effort to keep the liner afloat.

When Captain Totten and the last of the crew left the Tahiti the ship was foundering rapidly. The last of the crew left at 3:40 p. m. Sunday and an hour later the stern dipped beneath the surface. The Tahiti's bow was lifted aloft in the plunge downward, passengers said.

The survivors gave generous praise to the expert seamanship of Captain Meyer, who directed his ship through a treacherous course in record time. Without hesitating, the Ventura's captain ordered lifeboats launched and the dangerous work of transferring the Tahiti's passengers to the Ventura began.

The first indication of trouble came, according to Chief Engineer Thompson, when a violent vibration was noticed in the stern of the Tahiti.

"The propeller shaft fell out," he said, "and the water rushed through the hole and into the engine rooms through a smashed in cover."

THE RICKSHAW

Although it is not correct to state that the picturesque vehicle of the far east, the jinrikisha or "rickshaw," has entirely disappeared from the Oriental scene, the automobile is crowding this man-power carriage from the streets of the larger cities of Japan and China. Trolley cars first threatened to usurp the jinrikisha's place as a means of transportation, but with the advent of motorcycles and automobiles, the rickshaw pullers themselves have bowed before the inevitable.

The Yokohama pullers' guild has spent 30,000 yen, or $15,000, for the purchase of taxicabs which the erstwhile rickshaw men are being taught to drive. Taxicabs in Tokyo have reduced their rates from a yen, or 50 cents, for which one could travel to any point within the city limits, to 50 sen, or 25 cents, forcing the rickshaw men to reduce their tariff accordingly.

Outside the large cities, of course, narrow roads still make the jinrikisha indispensable. But the tourist who spends a few hours on shore in the course of a world cruise will not find the rickshaw so common in the centers of population. Thus has the machine age vanquished another feature of quaint charm, though the conscience of the traveler who first climbs into one of these chariots drawn by another human being may have less reason to be troubled.

Credit for the invention of the jinrikisha is generally given to an American Baptist missionary named Goble, who, in 1869, is said to have fashioned the two-wheeled conveyance, somewhat resembling a sulky, from the large wheels of a baby carriage. Early in the same year one Takayama Kosuka obtained permission from the Japanese government to operate jinrikishas for hire, while another Japanese contributed the improvements of springs, wheel guards and the hood design, like a raleigh top. Jinrikishas have since been introduced in all Asiatic countries and have even found their way into Africa.

TARIFF CHALLENGE

Any hesitation on the part of the chairman of the Democratic national committee to accept the challenge of the chairman of the Republican national committee to make the tariff the outstanding issue in the approaching congressional elections would have been surprising. J. M. Shouse did the expected thing: Grabbed up the gauntlet before it could be withdrawn.

The tariff is always a favorite issue with politicians. As a form of indirect taxation it is understood by relatively few people. Consequently campaign spellbinders can ring the changes on it, according to the political or economic complexion of their audiences, without much danger of being contradicted from the floor. All tariffs in this country have been and all tariffs in this country will continue until the end of time to be victims of political legerdemain before the eyes of consumers, who forget that they are also producers and in that capacity benefit from protection.

The particular tariff that will be discussed during the forthcoming campaign falls still another handicap. The Hawley-Smoot bill became law during one of the periodical slumps in business which persist in plaguing the United States, as well as the rest of the world. This will affect the party responsible for it in two ways. The free traders will claim that the tariff produced the depression; and the depression, which long antedated the enactment of the tariff and promises to continue for some months to come, will prevent the tariff from showing what it can accomplish under normal conditions.

As far as the elections this year are affected by it, we can't imagine the Democratic chairman seeking an issue better molded to his purpose of winning seats in congress. What will happen in 1932, after the Hawley-Smoot tariff has had a chance to show what it can do, very clearly is another question. After two years Chairman Shouse may not be so ready to accept the tariff as the decisive issue.

WANT MONEY?

Do you want some money? There is nearly a billion dollars ready to be loaned for building purposes—especially home building—in 46 cities of the United States. Anybody who says money is tight, according to H. U. Nelson, secretary of National Real Estate Boards, hasn't tried lately to borrow any for good building purposes.

Much unemployment has come from curtailment of home building. If you have a job and the ambition and want to build a home you can get the money.

CIRCUS CHURCHES

Many will agree with the Rev. Ira McCormack, Denver preacher, speaking in New York, who says circus tactics in church are no good. "With the World war gradually growing dimmer in our memories, we find ourselves fast to face with an era of transition, in which science and big business dominate every phase of our existence," says Dr. McCormack. "But is the Church adequately adapting itself to the increased tempo of life? Does it answer the needs of modern society? I should unhesitatingly say that it does not. Instead, it appears bewildered, drifting along with no goal in sight.

"In hope of regaining its hold, the Church has resorted to sensational advertising, seeking to attract the public by skating on the thin ice of unconventionality. Such circus tactics as placing a block of ice in full view of a perspiring congregation or decorating the aisles with bare cages are hardly exaggerations of the extremes to which some ministers will go. Services are 'jazzed up,' and the meetings of young people's organizations resemble scenes in a cabaret."

MARATHONS

Most of us have watched marathon dancers. They shuffle back and forth, round and round, night after night, day after day, week after week. They are going nowhere. We look on, wonder, pity, and deplore. Stupid, we think. They are not doing anything more stupid than some of us who are not performing on dance floors. We are performing all right, but nobody is paying admission to see us. We are just going round and round, back and forth, getting nowhere. We work a little because we must have something to eat and a place to sleep. We are doing what we did last year and the year before. This does not apply to everybody. You don't have to be in this list. There are some who plan their lives, who know where they are going, who have a definite idea what they are going to do when they get there. There are a few, indeed, who have already arrived and are doing the thing they want to do.

Don't be a marathoner.

He is serving his second term, but the term between his first and second was served by President Alvear, inasmuch as the Argentine constitution does not permit a president to succeed himself.

Bo-Broadway

By JOSEPH VAN RAALTE

NEW YORK CITY, New York—When you can on Mr. Ezra W. Hooley at his palatial suite of offices in the Bond Bldg. don't permit the window dresser to deceive you. All those stenographers and clerks and switchboard operators are not on his payroll. He pays rent for only one office in this suite and the flock of employees goes with the lease—a community group at the beck and call of each tenant.

Mr. Hooley rents from a corporation whose business it is to contract for office space by the entire floor. The floor is divided into offices. The company furnishes them, supplies the employees and runs the joint as a unit.

Thus, Hooley, with his small but respectable one-man-business, is able to put up a million-dollar-front to the uninitiated—so necessary in the modern scramble.

FREE LUNCH
The financial editor of a New York paper thinks that if Wall Street's business continues at its present laggard pace brokers may soon be forced to offer special inducements to customers. He thinks a free lunch counter in the customers' room, or a keg of beer, might do the trick.

Something will have to be done. A trip around the brokerage offices gives one the blues. They're virtually empty. Three of the offices visited recently didn't contain a single customer. In others, a few men and women sat around reading the newspapers, with apparently no interest whatever in the market. They had gone to The Street through force of habit.

On the theory that a little stimulant might go a long way toward ridding customers of their lethargy the suggestion has been advanced that brokers advertise refreshment served in the customers' rooms at a certain hour.

Stock Exchange officials might frown on such procedure; but it sure would be funny, as someone suggests, if the next bull market were to get started on pigs' knuckles and sauerkraut instead of an upturn in business.

ANOTHER DROUGHT SUFFERER

NAVAL ASTRONOMER EXPLAINS WHY PLANETS ARE SPHERICAL

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON.—Although, being ignorant as a horse of everything scientific, it never happened to occur to me until the other day—Isn't it odd that all the suns and planets are globular in form?—slightly bulging at their equators, to be sure, from the force of rotation on their imaginary axes, but approximately spherical.

Why aren't some of them square?—or irregularly polyhedral?—or miscellaneous jagged, ragged and lumpy?

Professor James Robertson of the United States naval observatory had to laugh (behind his hand, for he is the most considerate of old astronomers) at the naive bone-headedness of this inquiry.

Gravity is what makes the heavenly bodies globular, he explained. The same attraction which caused Isaac Newton's apple to fall straightway to earth's solid surface, when the processes of ripening detached it from its parent branch on land, tends constantly to pull earth's own component layers down, around about it, toward its own center.

Suppose our world consisted of nothing but water. Water's urge, as we know, is to find its own level—which is its response to the tug of gravity. Our aqueous world's impulse, equally, would be to hug its own center as closely as possible; obviously it would have to take the shape of a ball to accomplish it.

The earth's raw material flows, remarked Professor Robertson. Even granites flows—slowly, as we reckon time; nevertheless creeping imperceptibly to its level, at the behest of gravity.

Ice is a solid, as truly as granite—and most people know that ice flows, the professor reminds us. At any rate, glaciers (or ice rivers) trend ceaselessly into the ocean—hence icebergs, as the ocean floats them away.

Maybe this makes the idea of the gradual flow of granite seem a trifle less incredible.

Of course the surface of an exclusively watery world would be quite likely to be ruffled into waves, by external or internal influences, so there is nothing surprising in the fact that our own earth's more substantial surface is not a dead level. For that matter, the moon has mountain peaks that make the earth's look picaresque—25 or 30 miles high, some of them.

"Naturally," nods Professor Robertson. "The moon, being much smaller than the earth, has less gravitational attraction. The upheavals it must have experienced in its earlier formative period were correspondingly less restrained—and since then have been far less powerfully pulled down."

As to the earth, it is to be borne in mind, too, that our globe almost certainly did not start with its present solid crust, but presumably was gaseous and then liquid, materially assisting gravity in molding it into a tolerably perfect sphere.

Incidentally also it permitted its streamer in the layers, or strata, which geologists talk so much about.

Up-to-date geologists, indeed, begin their study of the earth of today with a preliminary study of our entire solar system's origin (as nearly as they can guess at what it was) and refer to their science as "the domestic chapter of astronomy."

What, not immediately proceeded, not only to gravitate itself into a sphere, but to classify its ingredients at the same time.

To illustrate: Instead of supposing it (as we previously strained our imaginations to do) to consist exclusively of water, let us suppose a world consisting partly of water; partly of oil—since we all know that oil and water do not mix; the oil is lighter and stays on top.

Thus, in the case of our oil-and-water world, the water, influenced by gravity, takes the form of a globular core, with a layer of oil outside—the whole thing a ball.

To be exact, geologists believe that the earth's inside is of iron or nickel-iron—a core of about half the whole earth's diameter—right at the center, because of the metal's predominant weight.

Toward this core's surface, the theory is that there is a strata of metal mixed with heavy rock, then less and less metal and more and more rock; then practically pure rock; then lighter and lighter rock; finally a superficial shell (estimated at from 35 to 70 miles thick) of the lightest rock of all—with water, a film of decayed animal and vegetable matter and an envelope of air outside.

The outer shell evidently still is in process of adjustment, readjustment and disturbance; the core, it is assumed, thoroughly stable.

These conclusions are not mere guesswork.

Science is able to calculate subterranean weights, densities and pressures very accurately.

Earthquakes likewise are enlightening. Seismographic records of them indicate the nature of the earth layers they have passed through. Yet the central core refuses to transmit them—whence it is inferred that it is a molten, liquid core, inasmuch as a liquid would balk in just that way.

Liquid! but a liquid, under enormous pressure, more rigid than steel.

A few collisions, welding smaller planets together, may have given the earth something of its present size, a good many geologists think.

Perhaps meteoric accretions added to it later.

There are geologists who believe that meteors, swept up in its travels, have added to it decidedly, but the more conservative among them question it—arguing that geologic history, even running, as it does, into the millions of years, does not allow time enough for such acquisitions to have made much impression.

PICNIC LUNCHEON

Chop Suey Small Ripe Tomatoes Assorted Sandwiches (Peanut Butter, Jelly or Lettuce and Egg for the children, and more highly seasoned ones for adults, cut different shapes to distinguish fillings)
Oatmeal Cookies Pears and Plums Milk carried in pail of cracked ice

This picnic menu is not so elaborate that the one who prepares it is so tired she cannot enjoy the outing. The menu is one that is intended for children as well as adults. One hot dish is served.

Today's Recipes

Chop Suey—One pound boiling beef, one onion, one bunch carrots, one bunch celery, one teaspoon salt, one can bean sprouts, one tablespoon sugar, one tablespoon chop suey sauce, one tablespoon cornstarch. This recipe is not as rich as the ordinary chop suey and is an excellent one for children because of the quantity of vegetables. Cut beef in small pieces and brown in hot fat with the sliced onion. Place in cooker, add the vegetables cut fine (except the sprouts), salt and cook about 45 minutes until tender in water to cover them, add sprouts, the sauce and sugar and thicken with the cornstarch dissolved in a little water.

Potato Salad—One quart sliced potatoes, one medium onion, cut fine; one cup table celery, cut fine; one tomato, diced; one cucumber, diced, or one-half pickle; one cup boiled mayonnaise dressing, one tablespoon salt. Mix ingredients together slightly, toss boiled dressing gently through it. Garnish, as desired, with parsley or hard-cooked eggs and sections of tomato. One cup diced ham may be added, if desired.

Queen Bee! cried Busy crossly. "You can't tell me anything about her. I've always heard she was a despot. But, poor thing, her ruling days are over when a new queen comes to town. Then her subjects turn upon her and drive her from the hive. To us Ants that's a great crime we would not be guilty of. As long as she lives our queen is our queen, however many others may arrive in her lifetime. To the end of her majesty's life we love her. Which has the better of it, the Bee-ville's queen or ours?"

Avoid Fur in Asthma, Hay Fever

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

August 15 to 20 is a period which for many people in the United States, marks a dreaded time. It is the period of the onset of the fall type of hay fever. The spring type comes in late May or early June (rose fever so-called) and is usually over by June 10. Those who have both types get a respite for a month or six weeks and then the fall type begins.

The way we found out the nature of hay fever is quite extraordinary.

An English doctor named Henry Hyde Salter had a cat. The cat presented the household with kittens. The kittens were very cute, and Dr. Salter became attached to one or two and adopted them. Then Dr. Salter began to have spells of asthma—and his nose ran and his eyes watered. An extraordinary thought occurred to him, which was that he had the asthma only when he got near the kittens.

He told some of his friends about it and they naturally laughed at him. But he had some cousins who also occasionally had asthma, and one day one of them came to visit Dr. Salter. The doctor, just to try an experiment, told his cousin to take one of the kittens up on his lap. He did so, and in spite of the fact that previously he had been feeling perfectly well, as soon as the kitten began to purr he was seized with an attack of asthma.

Finally, after a number of experiments, Dr. Salter wrote a book. This was in 1864. In the book he claimed that asthma and sneezing and running eyes could be caused by emanations from animals' fur. It was a long time before the medical profession accepted these ideas. In the meantime another English doctor, named Bostock, began to work on the hay fever problem. Hay fever and Dr. Salter's symptoms were much alike. Dr. Bostock showed that instead of being caused by animal emanations, hay fever is caused by plant emanations. The minute fertilizing particles of certain plants are blown off and fill the air at certain periods of the year. It is these pollen grains, too small to be seen by the naked eye, unless looked for closely, that are inhaled into the mucous membrane of the nose and there dissolved and absorbed. When this chemical is absorbed into the blood of the sensitive individual, it causes the running nose and eyes, the sneezing and asthma of hay fever.

The condition of being sensitive to these substances, whether they come from animals or plants, or other substances, is called allergy. About 10 per cent of the population have it in some form or other. The commonest form is fall hay fever. The condition is distinctly hereditary, and is transmitted by both fathers and mothers, i. e., in the male and female line. I know several sisters, brothers and sisters, fathers and sons, fathers and daughters, and mothers and sons or daughters who have it.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending cannot diagnose or give personal answers to letters from readers. Where questions are of general interest, however, they will be taken up, in order, in the daily column. ## Adopt Happy Attitude

WHEN I WAS a little girl and thought that my feet were much larger than those of my school-mates, I felt very much abused thereby, and my mother used to say, "Be thankful you are not lame, my dear."

That wasn't so very much comfort to me at the time, because what I wanted was sympathy, not a reminder that I was not the most afflicted person in the world. But many, many times since I have been out in the world, when I have been kept from my work, I have thought of the phrase and cheered up.

You can always take one of two attitudes, you know. You can either think you are terribly unhappy and make the welkin ring with your lamentations. Or you can "be thankful you're not lame," which may sound Pollyannaish and all that, but is, nevertheless, much more helpful. And makes you a much pleasanter person to have about.

"DEAR VIRGINIA LEE: I have a very hard time trying to be happy. I am not good looking, and I cannot seem to attract any boys. I am very neat about my appearance and try in every way to be sociable, but just can't, and here is the reason: I have a wide space in my teeth, right in front. I keep them very clean, but I feel terrible about it, just the same."

"I was keeping company with a very handsome young man for two years. Everything went fine, and he and many others told me he was crazy about me. We loved each other dearly until he got working in a place and a crowd of fellows got him going with them and also got him drinking. I broke off with him as he has a terrible temper and would probably get drunk often and use it. We were to have been married this coming October. I am now going with a fellow 15 to 20 years older than myself. He has been wonderful to me, helping me to forget the one I loved."

"Now, dear Miss Lee, I am going to admit that I have a terribly funny disposition, but it is because I am ashamed to smile on account of this terrible space. Everybody thinks I am cranky. The girls I go with like me because I smile and have a good time with them, but I can't do it in front of fellows. I imagine they all turn away and want to go when they see my teeth."

At the risk of offending you I have printed your letter because I could answer it better that way. Many people have the very slight affliction you speak of, but, dear, you can make your smile so bright that no one will notice that there is a space between your teeth, or even if they do, they won't care anything about it. I am not kidding you when I say this. I know it to be true. Why imagine if you had a real, a terrible scar, or some other real deformity, and be thankful.

Did you ever think to visit a good dentist and ask him if anything could be done to draw your teeth closer together? I suppose the teeth might be drawn out and two larger artificial ones put in, if you wanted to give up your own teeth and take substitutes. It would probably be expensive.

Two young men have loved you, when girls, who acknowledge that they are attractive, write me to know how they shall attract even one man as they are never noticed. So I don't imagine you are so very unattractive. As you grow older you will find that such little things don't matter at all. So cheer up, let the natural smiles come, and I'm sure you won't find the men running the other way. They are much like girls, you know, and I'm a jolly person.

MISS R.: Nothing can be done about it. You'll just have to wait until you're older. In the meantime, why not learn how to write grammatically and how to spell? I thought you were a ten-year-old girl when I first saw your handwriting.

"America's Most Famous Beauty" DURING the blistering hot weather, the bath becomes the most popular place in the house. The night and morning baths are essential, of course, for cleanliness. But those of us who are not compelled to be in offices bath even more frequently than that, merely to cool ourselves.

Undoubtedly, the thorough warm bath should be taken, the skin being to remove from the body the dust, grime and heavy perspiration of the hot day. The morning bath need be no more than a refreshing "dip." The numerous baths that you may take during the day as relief from the heat should be nothing more than cool or lukewarm "dips." A very bland soap should be used as an accessory to such baths.

If soap is used on the body too frequently, it will cause the skin to become dry and itchy. Persons who have any skin disorders should at all times be careful about the kind of soap they use.

It is always essential to use the mildest kind of soap in bathing, and when the baths are very frequent, the need for special care in the selection of the kind of soap you use is extremely important.

The average skin, subjected to too frequent strong soap and water ablutions, is likely to develop dryness. Showers, or rinses in a tub full of clear water are always necessary after a soap and water cleansing, but few persons heed this precaution.

As I have advised in a prior daily column.

SPORT SNAP SHOTS

FRAMED
by Phil

The post-season series, which will bring together the 1930 city softball champions and all-star teams selected from among the other league teams, will provide, if nothing else, an interesting comparison of the relative merits of the outside seam ball and the inside seam sphere, as well as the advantages or disadvantages of playing games with the bases sixty feet instead of forty-five feet distant.

Managers of local softball teams decided upon the experiment of playing this benefit series with fifty-foot bases and the inside seam ball to determine whether it might be more interesting to carry out this idea next season.

The present short distance between bases and the outside seam balls with their rough edges have both been the subject of considerable criticism this season and it would perhaps be advisable to change over to something new in the hope the sport will be improved.

The coming series, which will start next Friday night, will be three out of five games and an admission of a dime will be charged. It being the hope of the Xenia Playground Association that enough money will be raised to pay off all debts incurred this season and create a fund with which to start off on next year.

This department was, is now, and always will be in favor of regulation sixty-foot bases in the interest of giving fielders an even chance with the batters; that is, giving them more time to field ground balls in order to throw out a batter at first or second or any other base. We were originally against the inside seam ball but that was because the livelier sphere would give batters an even greater edge on infielders and outfielders. With the bases extended fifteen feet this advantage would be offset to a great extent no doubt.

The managers did the correct thing in voting down the proposal to permit the players to wear cleated shoes in the coming post-season series. Few members of any of the teams know anything about the right method of sliding into bases, or of touching a runner sliding into a base, and cleated shoes, it goes almost without saying, would result in many injuries from the pikes.

It remained for a softball fan and sportsman who does not live in Xenia, although he formerly resided here, to offer a suitable reward for the team winning the annual softball championship of this city.

Jim Kelly, who backs Dayton's entry in a professional basketball league, presented the Xenia Playground Association with a beautiful silver trophy to be awarded the 1930 Xenia softball champs and the gift is deeply appreciated by the association.

The former Xenian did not stipulate whether the trophy is to be contested for every year or whether it may be possessed permanently by the team winning the title this season, but possible it would be better to put it on a three-year basis. Then the first team to win the championship three years, commencing this season, could keep it always.

Wouldn't it be funny—but not to the Cincinnati Reds—if "Long George" Kelly, Red castoff, should actually help the Chicago Cubs win the National League pennant this season? Given his unconditional release by the Reds some time ago, Kelly joined the Minneapolis team of the American Association. He has now been acquired by the Cubs in a deal which sent Melvin Moss, southpaw rookie pitcher, to the Millers, on optional recall. The lanky first baseman is a seasoned veteran of thirteen years in the major leagues and he should bolster the Cubs in their drive down the stretch. Kelly was obtained after Charley Grimm, Cub captain and first baseman, was injured. Since Grimm will be on the shelf with a lame leg for two weeks or more, "Long George" should see immediate service. He has been hitting .354 for the Millers.

Paul Fetz, who loyally followed the fortunes of the Criterian softball team through an adverse season, missed his proteges on the occasion when they rose to the supreme zenith of their power, smashed the lofty Downtown Country Club team and there and then ended the National League season. Paul, usually on a first row bleacher seat during games, is laid up at home with an infected foot but hopes to be able to see the two series planned.

INFIRMARY INMATE REMOVED BY DEATH

Stewart Beach, 83, died at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon at the Greene County Infirmary, where he had been an inmate for the last five years. Death was due to infirmities of age.

He was born in Lumberton, southeast of Xenia but had lived here many years and was familiarly known to many as "Derby" Beach. There are no close relatives surviving.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Thursday at the Infirmary chapel with burial in Woodland Cemetery.

CADDIES SURPRISE KI-RO WITH VICTORY IN FINAL LEAGUE GAME

Finis was written on the current American League softball season at the athletic field Tuesday night when the C. C. Caddies surprised everyone, including themselves, probably, with an unexpected 11 to 9 victory over Ki-Ro-Rotary in a ten-inning contest that brought this league's schedule to a close.

The Caddies came through with their winning rally in the first half of the tenth round after two outs had been made when Fletcher singled, Shaffer doubled and Harner singled, scoring two runs.

The season's finale in this league was a see-saw affair with the lead changing hands frequently. Each team was credited with four wins.

Russ Kimber, Ki-Ro pitcher, smacked two home runs in consecutive times at bat in the fourth and fifth innings, but in each instance the bases were devoid of occupants at the time. Shaffer, with a brace of doubles and a single, and Fletcher, with three singles, topped the offensive of the winners.

Hornick pitched for the Caddies. He hurled a better brand of ball as the game progressed and held Ki-Ro to three-hits in the last six innings.

The Lang Chevrolet Co. and Geysers will furnish the entertainment Wednesday night, the latter team having a chance to wind up in second place in the National League.

The Idle Hour Club's softball nine, claimant to the 1930 city championship, will see plenty of action on the diamond this week.

The fast colored team will play a Yellow Springs nine at Mulberry St. park at 6:30 o'clock Wednesday night and at 7 o'clock Thursday night will face the famous William Shroyer and Sons team of Dayton, on the local diamond.

The Shroyer outfit, rated as one of the best in Dayton, has beaten the Lang Chevrolet Co., champions of the Xenia National League.

The Idle Hour boys claim they had a scheduled game with Lange for August 23 and that the Chevrolet team cancelled. Therefore, any claim Lange may make to the city title this season is not justified, in their opinion.

Idle Hour will also play a return game with the Gallups at Wilmington Friday night and a Columbus team will appear at Mulberry St. park for a game next Sunday at 6 p. m.

HOLD LADIES DAY

Tuesday was observed as "Ladies' Day" at the Bobby Lou midge golf course and of the large number of feminine miniature golfers who entered the competition.

Miss Jeanne Compton, St. Detroit St. turned in the lowest score. Her card for the twenty-one holes showed fifty strokes only two over par. Miss Lois Purdom, 447 N. Galloway St., negotiated the course in fifty-five strokes, the second lowest score of the day.

A handsome silver trophy, emblematic of the 1930 softball championship of Xenia, will become the temporary or perhaps permanent property of the winner of the forthcoming city championship series between the Krippendorf-Dittman Co., American League champions, and the Lang Chevrolet Co., title winners in the National League.

The trophy is the gift of Jim Kelly, Dayton, former Xenian, who did not stipulate, however, whether it is to be contested for annually or be retained permanently by the team winning the city title here this season. This point is expected to be decided upon later.

At present the award is on display in one of the show windows at the Hutchison and Gibney department store, N. Detroit St. It is mounted and on the top stands a figure depicting in miniature a pitcher in the act of throwing a ball.

To be technically correct, the figure is throwing the ball over-hand whereas softball pitchers must pitch under-hand.

The gift is sincerely appreciated.

Following the game with the Avalons, the Independents played five innings by agreement with the "Eddie Tailors" nine, a strong Springfield colored nine, and the result was a draw, the score being 3 to 3. K. Conklin pitched this abbreviated contest for Bowersville.

Bowersville desires to play a three-game series with some team within Greene County, starting September 14. Xenia, Osborn, Jamestown and any other clubs having a home diamond are asked to take notice. For particulars write G. A. Bock, Bowersville.

Next Sunday the Independents will face a Yellow Springs team at Bowersville.

SILVER TROPHY TO BE AWARDED CITY CHAMPIONS IN SOFTBALL

A handsome silver trophy, emblematic of the 1930 softball championship of Xenia, will become the temporary or perhaps permanent property of the winner of the forthcoming city championship series between the Krippendorf-Dittman Co., American League champions, and the Lang Chevrolet Co., title winners in the National League.

The trophy is the gift of Jim Kelly, Dayton, former Xenian, who did not stipulate, however, whether it is to be contested for annually or be retained permanently by the team winning the city title here this season. This point is expected to be decided upon later.

At present the award is on display in one of the show windows at the Hutchison and Gibney department store, N. Detroit St. It is mounted and on the top stands a figure depicting in miniature a pitcher in the act of throwing a ball.

To be technically correct, the figure is throwing the ball over-hand whereas softball pitchers must pitch under-hand.

The gift is sincerely appreciated.

RUNAWAY YOUTH IS HELD IN JAMESTOWN

A 12-year-old boy who ran away from his home in Dayton Tuesday because he feared a whipping after he had been scolded by his mother for disobedience, started out to walk to Washington, C. H., where he has relatives, but got only as far as Jamestown, where village officials picked him up shortly after midnight.

The youth had walked all the way from his home—a distance of about twenty-seven miles—and was dirty, ragged and hungry. He gave his name as Francis Irvin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Irvin, St. Charles St., Dayton.

Dr. R. L. Haines, county coroner, notified John Baughn, village marshal, who communicated with the lad's parents. The anxious mother and father had instituted a search for the boy.

SPLASH She Swims to Conquer By Eleanore Burnett Copyright, 1930, by Central Press Association, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST: Kitty Wilmont, secretary to Elery Goss, assists Gordon Platt, Goss' confidential man, with whom she is daily falling in love, in running down a "leak" in the offices; Atlee Goss' chief clerk, asks her to marry him. She does not accept. After meeting Boss Kelliher at a party given by Hilda, phone operator, she is later accosted by him, and he asks her to work for him at a thousand dollars a month.

Next day, in the East Side Natatorium, she defeats a professional swimmer in an impromptu race. She is shocked when Platt tells her a gambler, Tom Gayle, won a five thousand dollar bet on her, and indignantly rejects the money Gayle tried to pay as her share. She tells Platt about Kelliher's offer; Platt thinks it indicates Kelliher's connection with the leak.

Determined to be more active in helping Gordon, although not yet ready to confess Atlee's actions, she seeks the knowledge of Kelliher. Kitty asks help of Hilda's Spike Harden, through whom she gets the idea of employing a private detective agency. She finds "Henderson" in the phone office, but on being shown into a private office as "Miss Smith" is shocked to be greeted by Tom Gayle, the gambler Gordon said had bet on her.

Next day in East Side Natatorium she defeats a professional swimmer in an impromptu race, but is shocked when Platt tells her a gambler, Tom Gayle, won a five thousand dollar bet on her and indignantly rejects money Gayle offers her through Platt.

Wanting to help Platt, but not ready to tell all she knows of Atlee, Kitty asks help of Spike Harden, who suggests a private detective agency, where she is shocked to find Gayle, the gambler who bet on her, in charge. But she is happy to learn that Platt returned his money; and falls asleep that night dreaming of the kiss Platt never tried to give her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER 23

Kitty expected nothing from Gayle's report. "Poor little Bert Croymond," as she thought of him, was obviously just a family friend of the Ayers, and had no connection with Wall Street or the "leak." Kitty felt rather mean at putting him under espionage.

"But, of course, he'll never know, so it really doesn't make any difference," she comforted herself. "It's not a nice way to act, after his being so chivalrous on the train—but I couldn't think of any one else."

Thinking thus, she ran lightly up the steps of her boarding house, resolving for the thousandth time to move. She wanted a little apartment of her own, perhaps to share one with some other girl. Money considerations had prevented her from doing so, so far. Her salary was ample, but her promise to send money to John Spurgeon stood in the way; she saw too much misery resulting from lack of a reserve fund not to save for a while before she added more expenses to her budget. If she had not sent John and Mrs. H. B. Reeves, Richmond, Ind. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Reeves of Xenia, Ill. Pay Nichols of Dayton, spent Sunday at Fort Ancient and enjoyed a family reunion together.

She let herself in with her latch key and looked on the hall table for letters. There was none for her, but a card stared up to her; "Mr. John Spurgeon."

She turned, wondering; between the portiers of the boarding house parlor door stood her home town friend!

"Why, John!" she cried, putting out both hands, dropping her bag in excitement. "What a surprise. What brings you to New York?"

"I've come to see you," he said, his eyes longing. "Something in your dumb look of misery touched Kitty's heart. She pulled her hands from his, put them on his shoulders and stood on tiptoes to kiss him.

He flushed a bright red. "I—I didn't expect that! I've said, thickly. Oh, Kitty! I have missed you so much!"

"That's nice!" she smiled blushing a little at the warmth of his voice. Perhaps it would have been better not to have brought up anything. "But tell me what brings you here! Sit down, so, and tell me everything. How is your mother?"

Purgeon gulped. "It's the Mother has brought me here!" he confessed. "She—she's in rather desperate straits, I am sorry to say. They've done all I can for her—it's her eyes. I'm told I must take her to an eye clinic abroad, or she'll go blind."

"When do you start?" asked Kitty. "What can I do?"

"I don't know when I start. You've done all a woman can do—Kitty I'm so ashamed I had to take that money and I haven't been able to pay it back—this has been a horribly expensive matter—"

Kitty held up a hand. "John Spurgeon! As if I cared about the money! I don't need it—I've oodles every pay day! Forget it, do! When do you start?"

"When I can turn the small capital I have into several thousand dollars to start with!" he blurted out. "That's what I'm here for."

"Oh, I wish I had it to give you!" cried Kitty. "Maybe I can borrow some—"

"No!" He almost shouted the words. "I have a plan. I don't need any more help, from you! But I had to see you first—"

She had seen the glint of his mind off his troubles, talking of Hillerton, the country club, the swimming meets all their little diversions. She asked about many old friends and listened with more earnestness than she knew to familiar names, visualizing them as he spoke of them. But she was conscious of a great guilt—Hillerton was very far away in thought as well as fact.

"Remember the time I took you to the Hunt Club dance?" he was saying. "I've never forgotten—I'd sure like to dance with you again!"

Kitty thought rapidly. Why not? Ask another couple and make a party of it! Night club; dance; show John a good time for one evening, anyway—poor Mrs. Spurgeon! Might go blind; Oh, why didn't she know some way to make some easy, quick money? A blinding flash of thought passed through her mind, but she shuddered away from it. She could not—not even for John could she go and take Kelliher's fake job. Besides, John needed thousands, not a thousand—never mind. The thing now was to give him a happy evening.

"So you shall dance with me!" she cried. "Mr. Spurgeon will you be my escort this evening and let me play hostess? I'm inviting you to a party!"

"What kind of a party?" he stammered, somewhat taken back by her swift reaction.

"Dancing party, of course! You shall take me out to supper and I'll get a couple of friends and we'll make an evening of it!"

"But—but—" he began, but she put up a protesting hand. Whom should she ask? Sally and Joe? Baby and Atlee? Hilda and Spike? She laughed at that idea. Patty Hemming and any one he wanted to bring? Or change them around and ask Sally and Atlee? Or Gordon? But Kitty balked. To ask the man who was in her mind a successful suitor—Kitty did not disguise to herself her vivid interest in the mysterious partner who had so evil a reputation and was so interesting and so attractive—to a party in which she tried to amuse and please the man who wanted her and whom she had rejected, was hardly fair. She decided against Gordon with a little sigh of regret. After all she would have to devote her time to John; to see Gordon with another girl, even if it were Sally or Baby, in whom she knew he would have no personal interest, was an unnecessary torture.

She decided to ask Baby and Atlee.

She stepped to the telephone, and in spite of John's anxious request to "wait a minute, I'm not sure—" she called Baby on the wire.

"Baby? Kitty talking! Old friend in town tonight. Want to throw a party for him. Will you bring Atlee and meet me at the Chez Moi—or I don't care—Bert, if you want, or Patty. He's John Spurgeon. I used to know him at home. Yes, yes, fellow! All right, bring any boy friend you want—Chez Moi at nine!"

She turned to her old friend. "Baby Ayers is a good little scout," she began, wondering in her heart if Baby really reserved the appellation. "The Chez Moi is one of the nicest places. She'll get one of my new friends—Atlee Wainwright or Bert Croymond or Paddy Hemming, and we'll have a nice party—"

"But, my dear girl!" John Spurgeon was obviously distressed. "Don't you understand? I can't—I am not—I haven't very much—"

"Listen, John!" Kitty put her hands on his shoulders again. "You can't do anything about business tonight! I want to throw a party for you—so you can dance with me again! It won't cost you anything but time!"

She pretended not to understand him; but she knew he was protesting that he had no money to waste on parties, he who had come to New York to raise several thousands to take his mother away. But she had plenty for the party; and whoever Baby brought would settle, anyway.

She took him to the quietest place she could remember for dinner—a Chop House, where they had the usual mutton chop and salad with a deep dish pie for desert. She had dressed in her prettiest, but refused to remove her wrap at dinner, preferring to show herself in the evening gown amidst the proper surroundings later on.

Baby brought Patty Hemming as her escort. To Kitty's surprise, John got on with him famously. The Chez Moi is a rather quiet club, with good music and an unusually large dance floor. Kitty had chosen it that John Spurgeon might not be shocked. Patty danced with her, and she thanked him for being nice to her friend; then, innocently, she told him a little of John's reason for being in New York. But before she could complete the story she caught sight of a well known and much loved figure; through the door onto the dance floor came Gordon Platt. With him was a gorgeous girl in vivid green and highly made up, snake like, slender, a pale straw blond.

The sudden jealous clutch at Kitty's heart was revealing of her feeling; but it was nothing to the agony which was hers in a moment. Dancing with Patty, she passed close to him; she smiled, ready to speak.

Gordon Platt looked her straight in the face and neither spoke nor smiled.

ACCUSED OF ATTACK ON COLORED CHILD, MAN TO FACE TRIAL

Charged with contributing to the delinquency of a minor in connection with an alleged attempt to make a criminal assault upon a 13-year-old Xenia colored girl last Saturday, Edgar A. Manuel, 35, of Kenwood Ave., Dayton, white, entered a not guilty plea when arraigned in Juvenile Court Tuesday afternoon.

Common Pleas Judge R. L. Gowdy, presiding on the bench in the absence of Juvenile S. C. Wright, who is on his vacation, assigned Manuel's hearing for Thursday, September 4 and fixed his bond at $300.

An affidavit against Manuel filed by the mother, charged the Dayton man induced her daughter to accompany him away from her home in his car on the pretext he was taking her to his mother's home on Home Ave., this city, to work for her. Instead, the affidavit accuses him of having taken her into the country alone the Federal Pike and making improper advances toward her.

The girl, according to the story told county authorities by the mother, jumped from the auto and ran.

Traced through the license number on his machine, Manuel was arrested by Dayton police Monday and was brought to the County Jail, where authorities say he was identified by both the girl and her mother as the child's assailant.

RIVETS MAKE THE SUBMARINE AIR-TIGHT

The

STEEL FURNACE
is gas-tight
and dust-tight
because it is riveted

LENNOX TORRID ZONE FURNACE for soft coal with outer casing removed, showing riveted construction. (A) Extra-long smoke chamber, or radiator, squeezes maximum of heat from smoke before it can escape up chimney. (B) The specially designed fuel-saving fire-pot with locomotive grates and other features. You can see why this furnace is guaranteed for 10 years and why its average life, based on the service records of thousands of Torrid Zones, is 21 years.

Fumes can never drift up from a Torrid Zone Warm Air Furnace to annoy the family in the dining-room, living-room or in any other part of the house. It is made of steel plate, rolled in the same mills that make armor plate for battleships. It is really an air-tight steel drum.

For just as the submarine is made air-tight by being hot riveted and cold-calked . . . so the steel Torrid Zone Furnace is made gas, smoke and dust-tight.

. . . Made gas, smoke and dust-tight to shield your family from fumes that poison; to protect your home from smudgy smoke and dust. No more dingy ceilings. No more discolored wallpaper or sooty draperies and upholstery.

With a Torrid Zone you also get proper humidity and air circulation. The humidifier has twice the evaporating area inside the casing of ordinary water pans. Rapid evaporation is also necessary, so it is placed right over the firing doors where it gets the most heat possible. Proper air circulation is guaranteed, when an authorized Lennox Furnace man installs according to the Standard Code. Indeed, with this furnace in your home you have the satisfaction of knowing you own the finest heating plant science has ever devised.

Your Torrid Zone Steel Furnace will produce 10% to 20% more heat from the fuel than other furnaces, hence will heat your home with less fuel than any other furnace would consume. It will burn soft coal, coke, hard coal, lignite, wood, gas or oil.

Come in and see a Lennox Torrid Zone . . . its sturdy locomotive grates . . . its "lazy" shaker.

75,000 MILES IN A MODEL A FORD

Letter from salesman
shows reliability and
economy of the car

IN THE past two years, many new Fords have been driven 50,000, 75,000 and even 100,000 miles. Everywhere the car has made an unusual record for reliability and economy. Following is a letter from a salesman who travels long distances daily by automobile.

"I purchased a Model A Coupe May 8, 1928, and at this writing have run it 75,883 miles.

"After I had driven 44,400 miles, I spent $45.08 in repairs and at 61,000 miles had an additional amount of work done costing $25.60. My tire mileage has averaged better than 18,000 miles.

"I am a traveling man and my territory is from northern Virginia to Macon, Mississippi, and from Knoxville, Tennessee, to the Atlantic Ocean."

Similar tributes to the new Ford come to us daily from individual owners, from Federal and City Bureaus and from large industrial companies having fleets of several hundred cars.

They have found, as you will find, that the low cost of operation and up-keep on the Ford is even more important than the low first cost of the car. In twenty, thirty, or fifty thousand miles, this saving frequently amounts to hundreds of dollars. The quality that has been built into the car is reflected in its good performance and long life.

See the Ford dealer and have him take you for a demonstration ride in the new Ford. Give it a severe test in traffic, on steep hills and on the open road. Check up on comfort, safety, speed, power, acceleration. Talk with Ford owners and experienced garage men and note what they say about reliability and economy.

Then you will know, from your own experience, that the new Ford brings you everything you want or need in a motor car at an unusually low price.
